PROCLAMATION FROM PRESIDENT LINCOLN.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 19.

The President has issued a proclamation, stating that an insurrection against the Government of the United States has broken out in the States of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, and the laws of the United States, for the collection of the revenue, cannot be effectually executed therein, conformably to that provision of the Constitution, which requires duties to be uniform throughout the United States, and further a combination of persons engaged in such insurrection have threatened to grant pretended letters-of-marque, to authorize the bearers thereof to commit assaults on the lives, vessels and property of good citizens of the country, carefully engaged in commerce on the high seas, and in the waters of the United States.

And whereas the President says an Executive proclamation has already been issued, requiring the persons engaged in these disorderly proceedings to desist, therefore calling out a militia force for the purpose of repressing the same, and convening Congress in extraordinary session, to deliberate and determine thereon. The President, with a view to the same purposes before mentioned, and to the protection of the public peace, and the lives and property of its orderly citizens, pursuing their lawful occupations, until Congress shall have assembled and deliberated on the said unlawful proceedings, or until the same shall have ceased, has further deemed it advisable to set on foot a BLOCKADE OF THE PORTS within the States aforesaid, in pursuance of the laws of the United States and the laws of nations, in such cases provided.

For this purpose a competent force will be posted so as to prevent the entrance and exit of vessels from the ports aforesaid.

If, therefore, with a view to violate such blockade, a vessel shall attempt to leave any of the said ports, she will be duly warned by the commander of one of the said blockading vessels, who will indorse on her register the fact and date of such warning; and if the same vessel shall again attempt to enter or leave the blockaded port, she will be captured, and sent to the nearest convenient port for such proceedings against her and her cargo as may be deemed advisable.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN,
President of the United States.

WM. H. SEWARD, Secretary of State.

OUR WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 19.

The President's proclamation will be issued to-morrow, announcing the blockade of the Southern ports.

THE MASSACHUSETTS TROOPS ATTACKED.

The Massachusetts men were attacked on their passage to Baltimore. The Sixth Regiment turned and fired on the mob, killing several.

Our New-York troops must be prepared to fight their way through.

VIRGINIA MONEY DEPRECIATED.

Virginia money has been quoted here for several days at 12½ and 15 per cent. discount, and a President of one of the prominent Banks says that probably it will go down to 25 per cent. discount. In consequence of this great and prospectively greater depreciation of Virginia currency, some shrewd speculators have hit upon a novel method for avoiding the loss by discount. One party went yesterday to Alexandria, where Virginia notes are received at par, and purchased $1,000 worth of flour. It is understood that others have gone there with large amounts of the same currency, to purchase bacon. These speculations are prompted by the expectation of a large consumption of these articles in the city. Government is already bringing in large quantities of provisions for troops, and storing them in the vaults of the public buildings.

THE SAFETY OF WASHINGTON.

Many people ask, "Will it be safe for women and children in Washington, in view of the threatened war?" and residents here are receiving numerous appeals from distant friends to leave the city for some more Northern refuge. All such indications of fear are idle. There has been danger of an outbreak here and in the neighborhood of the little squad of traitors who are scattered among the great mass of Unionists who comprise the population of the District; but there are not enough of them to get up a respectable riot, and they will not attempt it. As to the seizure of the Capital by a Southern army—that will never be effected if a million men can hold the Stars and Stripes over it,—for above all other points, this is the one which the Government will retain in its possession until it has been proven that the Secessionists can subjugate the rest of the American people,—and that time we apprehend here is not immediately at hand.

THE BENEFITS OF A FIGHT.

If there are still in the North any who hesitate about the propriety of effective measures to support the Government, and who fear and tremble lest a collision of arms is to render a perpetuation of the Union between the North and South impossible, it would do them good to hear the sentiments expressed by Southern gentlemen in this neighborhood—men who know the South, and who have independence enough to express their views freely and without stint. I remember that during the late session of Congress, an outspoken and honest Southern member, conversing with a member from New-England with respect to the disturbances between the sections, remarked, "We are going to have a fight with you, and somebody's going to get hurt; but after that we shall like each other better than we ever have since the foundation of the Government."

I confess that at the time it did seem as though the mode suggested was rather a rough sort of introduction to good fellowship; but in conversing to-day with another Southron, he expressed the same idea, in a form of argument which carried with it great force. "The masses of our people," he said, "don't understand the people of the North. You don't fight duels, nor do various other things which Southern education holds to be indispensable to a reputation for courage. They have consequently settled down into the conviction that 'Yankees' are 'cowards'—and while they despise them for that, they hate them also because they don't give them opportunity for more violent demonstrations upon their persons. They don't respect the people of the North—and so they don't believe Northern men when they disclaim any purpose of oppressing the South, and of interfering with Slavery in the States. Cowardice they look upon as the quintessence of meanness—and lying they consider its natural companion. Hence it is that they refuse to give the North credit for an honest motive in its Anti-Slavery sentiments, and hence they believe the demogogues, who profess to see nothing in your hostility to Slavery extension except an offensive purpose to humilitate the South, and force her to inequality in the Union. Now we are about to have a conflict; they will learn that Northern people are not cowards, but as brave and determined as themselves. The knowledge of that fact will inspire them with respect for you, give them confidence in your truth, and make us all better friends than the two sections ever can be until they have each learned, by a stern experience, that the other is worthy of respect and confidence."

There certainly is wisdom and sound logic in the argument,—and if the dread trial by the sword must come, there is some consolation in the anticipation that good will ultimately flow from the evil.

DISPATCH TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 19.

It is reliably stated by parties direct from Richmond that the ordinance of secession was publicly proclaimed yesterday. The vote on its passage is kept secret.

On inquiry at the Post-office Department it is ascertained that no measures are in progress for discontinuing any of the Southern mails. On the contrary, the contractors from that section recently here have arranged for facilitating the transportation. The Postmaster-General has discretion to suspend them only in cases of obstruction.

Capt. PAULDING, Commander EMMONS, and Lieut. WOODHULL constitute the Board of Detail, through whom all the naval preparations are made.

The Chief Clerk's room is the only one in the Navy Department accessible at times to the public.

The city is comparatively quiet this morning.

Those who feared an attack on Washington during last night were not even alarmed by any extraordinary notes of warning or precaution.

Rumors have been circulating for a week that the Philadelphia appointments have been made. As soon as the President actually makes them they will be seen.

Major A. M. HANCOCK, of Kentucky, has been appointed Consul to Malaga.

HARPER'S FERRY BURNT.

The Post Deserted and Fifteen Thousand Stand of Arms Destroyed.

BALTIMORE, Friday, April 19—11 A. M.

Harper's Ferry was burnt last night, and abandoned by the United States troops.

CARLISLE, Penn., Friday, April 19.

Lieut. JONES, late in command at Harper's Ferry, arrived here with his command of 43 men at 3 P. M., to-day.

Lieut. JONES, having been advised that a force of 2,500 troops had been ordered by Gov. LETCHER to take possession of Harper's Ferry, and finding his position untenable, under directions of the War Department, destroyed all the munitions of war, Armory, Arsenal and all the buildings. He withdrew his command under the cover of night, and almost in the presence of 2,500 troops. He lost three men.

Fifteen thousand stand of arms were destroyed.

The command made a forced march of thirty miles, last night, from Harper's Ferry to Hagerstown, Md. Lieut. JONES and command look much worn and fatigued. They were most enthusiastically received by our entire population.

THE CUMBERLAND AT HAMPTON ROADS.

BALTIMORE, Friday, April 19.

The United States corvette Cumberland is at Hampton Roads, and not inside Norfolk harbor. She is caulked anew. It is said she got up anchor last night.

The Illinois, from Charleston, is due at Norfolk, with troops for Fort Monroe. Attempts may be made to prevent her from landing them, which the Cumberland can effectually oppose. Her presence is most opportune. Everything is quiet at Norfolk to-day.

STARTLING FROM BALTIMORE.

The Northern Troops Mobbed and Fired upon—The Troops Return the Fire—Four Massachusetts Volunteers Killed and Several Wounded—Several of the Rioters Killed.

BALTIMORE, Friday, April 19.

There was a horrible scene on Pratt-street, to-day. The railroad track was taken up, and the troops attempted to march through. They were attacked by a mob with bricks and stones, and were fired upon. The fire was returned. Two of the Seventh Regiment of Pennsylvania were killed and several wounded.

It is impossible to say what portion of the troops have been attacked. They bore a white flag as they marched up Pratt street and were greeted with showers of paving-stones. The Mayor of the city went ahead of them with the police. An immense crowd blocked up the streets. The soldiers finally turned and fired on the mob. Several of the wounded have just gone up the street in carts.

At the Washington dépôt, an immense crowd assembled. The rioters attacked the soldiers, who fired into the mob. Several were wounded, and some fatally. It is said that four of the military and four rioters are killed. The city is in great excitement. Martial law has been proclaimed. The military are rushing to the armories.

Civil war has commenced. The railroad track is said to be torn up outside of the city. Parties threaten to destroy the Pratt-street bridge.

As the troops passed along Pratt-street a perfect shower of paving stones rained on their heads.

The cars have left for Washington, and were stoned as they left.

It was the Seventh Regiment of Massachusetts which broke through the mob. Three of the mob are known to be dead and three soldiers. Many were wounded. Stores are closing, and the military rapidly forming. The Minute Men are turning out.

BALTIMORE, Friday, April 19—2:30 P. M.

Affairs are getting serious. Before all the cars got through, great crowds assembled at various points and commenced obstructing the road.

Reports are now arriving that the mob are tearing up the track.

It is understood the principal portion of the troops have got through.

BALTIMORE, Friday, April 19—4 P. M.

A town meeting has been called for 4 o'clock.

It is said there have been 12 lives lost.

Several are mortally wounded.

Parties of men half frantic are roaming the streets armed with guns, pistols and muskets.

The stores are closed.

Business is suspended.

A general state of dread prevails.

Parties a short time ago rushed into the telegraph office, armed with hatchets, and cut the wires. Not much damage was done.

BALTIMORE, April 19—5 P. M.

R. W. DAVIS, of the firm of PEGRAM, PAYNTER & DAVIS, was shot dead during the riot, near Camden Station.

It is reported that the Philadelphians are now at the outer dépôt.

The President of the Road has ordered the train back, at the urgent request of the Mayor and Governor. They are already off.

The citizens who were mortally wounded are, JOHN MCCAN, P. GRIFFIN and G. NEEDHAM.

Four of the Massachusetts troops were killed and several wounded, but it is impossible to learn their names.

As far as ascertained, only two of the Massachusetts soldiers were killed, belonging to Company C. Their bodies are now at the Police Station.

At the same Station are the following wounded:

Sergeant AMES, of the Lowell City Guard, wounded in the head, slightly.

Private COLUM, of the same place, shot in the head, not serious.

Private MICHAEL GREEN, of Lawrence, Mass., wounded in the head, by stones.

H. W. DANFORTH, Company C, Sixth Regiment, of Massachusetts, slightly wounded.

So far as known at present, seven citizens were killed, including Mr. DAVIS, before mentioned, and JAMES CLARK.

Half a dozen or so are seriously wounded, though it is believed not fatally.

Comparative quiet now prevails. The military are under arms, and the police are out in full force.

There is a large mass meeting here to-night, addressed by the Mayor. The Governor was present.

PHILADELPHIA VOLUNTEERS SENT BACK.

PHILADELPHIA, Friday, April 19.

The Philadelphia Volunteers have been turned back, because without arms or equipments.

THE MASSACHUSETTS TROOPS IN WASHINGTON.

PHILADELPHIA, Friday, April 19.

A special dispatch from Washington says that the Massachusetts Regiment, except 120 men, arrived there at 5 o'clock. They report that three of their members were killed.

OUR BALTIMORE CORRESPONDENCE.

WARLIKE NEWS FROM THE SOUTH—VIRGINIA SECEDED—ATTACK ON HARPER'S FERRY—GOV. HICKS—EXCITEMENT IN BALTIMORE—RESIGNATION OF COL. HUGER, U. S. A., &C.

Correspondence of the New-York Times:

BALTIMORE, Thursday, April 18, 1861.

The news from the South is of the most warlike character. Every effort at preparation is being made for the anticipated conflict; and private dispatches, from unprejudiced sources, represent the feeling of resistance as unanimously extreme.

I have reason to believe, on reliable authority, that the Virginia Convention have, in secret session, by a large majority, repealed the ordinance by which she became a member of the Confederation; that it has not been made public, because of the desire first to mature some plan of prompt and general action; that some fifteen hundred or two thousand troops are now en route for Harper's Ferry, and that ere this reaches you that post will be in their possession.

Serious fears are entertained by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, in consequence of information imparted from different sources, that their bridge over the Potomac will be destroyed. The President, Mr. GARRETT, has this moment, by special engine, sent an influential agent there with a view to the protection of the Company's property.

The Norfolk boat of this morning also brings intelligence that the Navy-yard there had been seized, and that vessels had been sunk in the channel, to prevent the men-of-war, lying under the guns of Fortress Monroe, from leaving.

Gov. HICKS has not yet responded, either affirmatively or negatively, to the requirements of the Secretary of War, in regard to the quota of troops from Maryland. The statement in the papers of yesterday that he had done so, are not true.

There is great excitement in this city. A serious disposition is manifested in certain quarters to obstruct the passage of Northern troops through the State. Public opinion is, as yet, too equally divided to permit any open demonstration, and the Mayor and Board of Police are determined on preserving order. The Police force is a well disciplined and efficient one, but has no general authority beyond the Municipal limits.

Col. B. F. HUGER, commandant at the Pikesville Arsenal, near this City, on Monday resigned his commission in the United States service.

The clouds deepen, and all who seriously regard the political atmosphere, are trembling at the impending crash. CECIL.

THE CITY MILITARY EXCITEMENT.

The Seventh Regiment off for Washington.

The Seventy-first, Twelfth and Sixth Regiments Ordered to Leave To-morrow.

The Metropolis Alive with Military Excitement—The People Bid the Seventh God Speed—The Union and its Flag to be Upheld—The Rhode Island Troops En Route.

Yesterday was a sad, and yet triumphant day for New-York. It was sad that a thousand of our noblest citizens should be so suddenly called away from their homes—perhaps to death—to defend the Constitution and the laws. It was a triumphant vindication of the loyalty of our citizens' thus promptly volunteering to the hardships of a soldier's life. Never before were the people roused to such a pitch of patriotic enthusiasm. There have been gala days, and funeral pageants, and military shows, and complimentary receptions, and triumphal processions that filled the streets with crowds of curious, wondering, sympathetic people, but never has there been developed such a universal, heart-felt, deep-rooted, genuine enthusiasm. The American colors were prominent everywhere—on housetops, on flag-staffs, on horses attached to all kinds of vehicles, on ropes stretched across the streets, on the masts of shipping in the harbor, on breastpins, on the lappets of coats, on the fronts of men's hats—on all sides the glorious old red, white and blue waved in the joyous breeze and dazzled the eye with their bright colors. The awful solemnity of civil war came pressing home to our people who had sons and brothers and fathers just departing, perhaps never to return. The news of the difficulties in Baltimore, the struggle of the troops with the rabble, the reported death of many, the rumors of an attack on the Capital, the tearing up of railroad tracks, and all the attendant horrors of internecine warfare, struck terror into many a stout heart, while the tears of kind-hearted women flowed copiously as a rain-storm. The excitement was heightened to a great degree by the announcement of the fact that the Sixth, Twelfth and Seventy-first Regiments had likewise been ordered to leave for the seat of war this afternoon. Appended are the details of the various movements:

DEPARTURE OF THE SEVENTH REGIMENT.

IMMENSE ENTHUSIASM—EXCITING AND IMPRESSIVE SCENES AND INCIDENTS.

The intelligence that the Seventh Regiment, the "crack" Regiment, the almost adored military body, of this City, would leave for Washington yesterday afternoon, created an excitement scarcely surpassed by anything that has transpired since the first news of the attack on Fort Sumter. Although it was announced that 3 P. M. was the time for the assembling of the Regiment at their Armory, over Tompkins Market, Broadway was the scene of gathering for hundreds of people long before noon. The march of the second installment of Massachusetts troops, early in the forenoon, was but an incentive to their patriotism. If they had to wait many hours, as indeed they had, they were prepared to stand on the tip-toe of expectation till their favorite Regiment passed, even if nightfall came. The aspect of Broadway was very gay indeed. Minus the firing of pistols and the explosion of Chinese crackers, it was many Fourth of Julys rolled into one. The Stars and Stripes were everywhere, from the costliest silk, twenty, thirty, forty feet in length, to the homelier bunting, down to the few inches of painted calico that a baby's hand might wave. It would be invidious to say from what buildings the National flag was displayed, because it would be almost impossible to tell from what buildings it did not wave, and never, if flags can be supposed to be animated with any of the feelings of their owners, with a purer devotion to the Union. Evidently, all political partisanship was cast aside. But the gayest, and in this respect, the most remarkable thoroughfare, was Cortlandt-street. Lafayette place, where the Regiment was to form previous to marching, was very attractively dressed—a huge flag being displayed from the Astor Library, among numerous others from private buildings. But Cortlandt-street showed a gathering of flags, a perfect army of them. They were not, in that comparatively brief space from Broadway to the Jersey City Ferry, to be numbered by dozens or by scores, every building seemed like "Captains of Fifties." It was flag, flag, from every window from the first floor to the roof, from every doorway—in short, it was flag, flag,—and of quite large sizes, too, till the wearied eye refused the task of counting them. Such was the display along the route of the "Seventh." Such is and will be the route for all noble troops entering our City from the New-England States.

Around the Armory of the Seventh Regiment crowds gathered at an early period of the day, and moved on, only to be replaced by other crowds. So the excitement was kept up, till towards three o'clock the throng became stationary. It was, by no means, an ordinary crowd. Well-dressed ladies, men whose checks can be honored at the best Banks for as many dollars as would build a church of excellent architecture, were among them. They were about to witness the pedarture of the Seventh Regiment, too probably, to the battle-field. Though the flags waved gaily over them, their faces wore a grave look—not sad exactly, but it was no time for mirth.

From all quarters the members of the Regiment, in full fatigue dress, with their knapsacks and blankets, kept pouring into the Armory. Guards at the doors kept the crowd, who had no business inside, from entering but the building was filled to its utmost, notwithstanding, by the members, their relatives and friends. There were many touching scenes of farewell-taking, but these were merely episodes. Mothers, wives, sisters, will weep on such occasions, but there was no faltering among the men. A heartier shake of the hand than usual, to a friend,—a warmer kiss—let it be reverentially said—to a wife or mother, and the manhood of the soldier grew the greater, and he trussed his knapsack the tighter to his back as he gave the last adieu.

They formed in Lafayette-place about 4 P. M., in the presence of an immense crowd, each window of each building being filled with such fair applauders as might cheer the heart of the forlornest bachelor, if there was any such among these noble soldiers. Once in line, they proceeded through Fourth-street to Broadway, down that great thoroughfare to Cortlandt-street, and across the ferry, in boats provided for the purpose, to Jersey City. The line of march was a perfect ovation. Thousands upon thousands lined the sidewalks. It will be remembered as long as any of those who witnessed it live to talk of it, and beyond that, it will pass into the recorded history of this fearful struggle. The Regiment was escorted by a band of Zouaves, who volunteered for the occasion. Their gay uniform and peculiar step revived the excitement that had begun somewhat to droop among the crowd that had waited for hours, the regiment not reaching the Park till 5½ o'clock. After the Zouaves came, a strong body of police, and after the police, THE REGIMENT. Not as, on festival days, not as on the reception of the Prince of Wales, but, nobly and sternly, as men who were going to the war. Hurried was their step, not so regular as on less important occasions. We saw women, we saw men shed tears as they passed. Amidst the deafening cheers that rose, we heard cries of "God bless them." And so along Broadway, and through Cortlandt-street, under its almost countless flags, the gallant Seventh Regiment left the City.

The excitement in Jersey City, long before they had crossed the ferry, was scarcely less intense, and when they landed there, they found they were by no means in a foreign State. It seemed that all the people of the sister city had turned out. It was a reënaction of what their fellow townsmen and townswomen had done for them. White handkerchiefs, waved by the ladies' hands, were as numerous as the dog-wood blossoms in Spring, and it was proved that a Jerseyman can raise as hearty a cheer as the best New-Yorker. And so it was till all were fairly disposed of in the cars, and the cars moved off.

We regret to have to record an accident in this connection. One of the Medical Staff accompanying them, a German gentleman, was crushed in Jersey City between an express wagon and a car. He was so injured that he was unable to give his name. He was duly taken care of.

Two or three incidents connected with the occasion of this departure of the Seventh may be properly taken notice of. While at the Armory, before starting, news was brought of the attack at Baltimore on the Pennsylvania troops, and the subsequent bloodshed. It was at first disbelieved, but afterwards became credited. Of course there was not the first indication on the part of any member of backing down. On the contrary, it seemed to inspirit them the more. One old gentleman, a veteran of the Regiment, earnestly begged, on hearing it, that he might be supplied with a regimental suit, knapsack and appurtenances, and as he could not be accommodated, he left for home, vowing that he would supply himself, and follow on to-day. By the way, we learn that about 100 more members of the Regiment intend to leave here on Monday. The Twelfth, Ninth and Seventy-first Regiments leave to-day.

Another incident was, that previous to the departure of the Regiment a splendid American flag was presented to them by E. H. SIMON, Esq., of Company A, Seventy first Regiment. An appropriate expression of sentiment accompanied the presentation, which was feelingly responded to by COL. LEFFERTS.

One of the members of the Regiment was to have been married on Monday, and the cards of invitation had been issued. But he went yesterday, all the same, to serve his country. The ardent wishes, not only of his friends, but of thousands who never saw his face, will be that he may return at no distant period, unhurt, and with his due share of honor, to fulfill the happy contract.

A false report was spread, and gained credence by its being published in some of the evening papers, and announced on their bulletins, that, owing to the exciting news from Baltimore, the track having been torn up and a fight progressing, the Seventh would march down Canal-street and embark on board the Baltic for Washington. This, of course, was not true.

While the Regiment was passing down Broadway, opposite the store of Messrs. BALL, BLACK & Co., Major ANDERSON appeared on the front balcony, and was immediately greeted with prolonged shouts of applause. Each company of the Regiment, with their officers, Col. LEFFERTS and Col. SHUMWAY, stopped, took off their caps, and cheered with the heartiest will. The crowd of spectators, learning the occasion, shouted with all their power, till the gallant Major, after bowing several times, had to retire. He had afterwards to leave the building by a side door, to escape the enthusiastic attentions which the people were prepared to bestow upon him.

On the Corn Exchange, as on the Merchants' Exchange, at the Stock Exchange, and in commercial circles generally, the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. As the gallant Seventh Regiment was under marching orders for the National Capital, several young merchants, serving in its ranks, bade adieu to their associates at the Corn Exchange. No words of regret were heard, but many an earnest "Good-bye," and "God bless you, my brave fellow." Offers of money to defray expenses were freely made. Assurances to those who were leaving young families behind that these should not be neglected were generously given. The sentiments interchanged were truly inspiriting. The Government should be supported, rebellion should be suppressed, the public property defended and the laws enforced. The Corn Exchange is thoroughly satisfied that its representatives—the MALLONS, the HERRICKS, and others—in the ranks of the glorious "Seventh" will do their duty, faithfully and well.

On the railroads between this and Washington, it is intended that the Seventh Regiment shall be preceded by a Pilot Engine, to insure safety. The Engineer Corps have howitzers loaded with grape and canister. Probably the troubles at Baltimore will interfere with the Pilot Engine.

The great meeting to be held to-morrow was also a leading topic at the Merchants' Exchange. All the members and subscribers not absent on military duty, decided to attend,—adopting the following resolution unanimously, and amidst vociferous cheering:

Resolved, That the members of the New-York Corn Exchange close their places of business to-morrow, Saturday April 20, at 2 P. M., and attend the meeting to be convened at Union Square at 3 P. M., in support of the General Government of the United States of America.

We are requested by Quartermaster WINCHESTER, of the National Guards to say that packages, or letters, in stamped envelopes, for members of the Seventh Regiment, while on duty in Washington, will be received by Mr. HOEY, Superintendent of Adams Express Company, and forwarded free of charge. They should be addressed, care of Quartermaster WINCHESTER, and delivered at the office of Adams Express Company previous to 4½ P. M.

THE SEVENTH REGIMENT AT NEW-BRUNSWICK.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Friday, April 19.

The Seventh Regiment of New-York, numbering nine hundred and ninety-one men by actual count, reached New-Brunswick at 8¾ P. M. The route thus far has been one continued ovation, and at every station on their route they have been greeted with the booming of cannon and the shouts of thousands of the patriotic citizens of New-Jersey, who have almost lined the road, and houses at a distance of half a mile from the road were seen to be illuminated.

PHILADELPHIA, Friday, April 19—11 P. M.

The Seventh Regiment has not arrived yet, though expected more than an hour since. It is reported they will go on board the Keystone State, and be taken to Washington via the Potomac. The streets are thronged to witness them march. They were at New-Brunswick at 9 o'clock, but it will be 12 ere they reach here.

THE VOLUNTEERING EXCITEMENT.

THE SEVENTY-FIRST REGIMENT.

At the Head-quarters of this Regiment, in Centre Market, there was a great rush of members, volunteers and friends, on the announcement of the arrival of orders to leave for Washington. In Company E alone there are 250 recruits, although only that number was required for the whole corps. It is supposed that at least 500 men will be ready to obey the summons. There was much chagrin, however, that the order had not come earlier, and many complaints were made that the Seventh Regiment had more notice, better equipments and a subscription fund to help them pay expenses, while the other regiments ordered out had short notice, imperfect equipments and no pecuniary aid. In view of these facts, a Committee was deputized to wait upon the other regiments and together apply to Gen. SANDFORD for an extension of time, if only for twenty-four hours. Many of the members are dependent upon daily labor for the support of their families, and require time to make the necessary domestic arrangements. The recruiting, however, proceeded rapidly. Much gratification was expressed at the fact of Col. VOSBURG being the senior Colonel, and therefore commander of the battalion ordered to go to-day.

We are requested to state that volunteers for the Seventy-first Regiment, to leave for Washington on Sunday morning, will be received at the Armory, Centre Market, all day Saturday.

TWELFTH REGIMENT.

The arrival of Col. BUTTERFIELD from Washington, with the orders for the Sixth, Twelfth and Seventy-first to depart for Washington to-day, set the City in a fever of excitement. At the various drill-rooms of the Twelfth Regiment, the crowds that poured in continually kept the rooms filled to overflowing. There were no less than 600 recruits enrolled during the day. At least 400 men of the regular Regiment, ready uniformed and equipped, will be ready to leave to-day. The Old Guard, exempt and honorary members of the Regiment, met promptly, and took measures to help those going, and keep up the organization here, and be prepared to go on in a few days if necessary. The Regiment joined in the request for an extension of the time—having every confidence in being better able to be properly equipped at longer notice. The volunteers will not go until they can be better equipped and partially drilled. A semi-Zouave uniform is to be furnished by the Government for the entire corps. Col. BUTTERFIELD is using every effort to have the Regiment do credit to the City and the State.

The members of the Old Guard, also the exempt members of the Twelfth Regiment, are requested to meet, in citizens dress, at No. 594 Broadway, this Saturday afternoon, at 2½ o'clock, for the purpose of acting as a guard of escort to the Twelfth Regiment on their departure from this City.

THE SIXTH REGIMENT.

The head-quarters of this Regiment presented a lively scene last evening, on the occasion of the preparations for leaving for Washington to-day. Col. PINCKNEY was surrounded by his wondering officers, who bothered him with endless questions as to the minutiæ of the trip. The utmost chagrin was evinced that no longer notice could be given, and many officers avowed that their commands could not turn out at so slight warning. The armorers' room, the company quarters and the crowded drill room resounded with the busy note of preparation, the buzz of conversation among the visitors and the continued administering of the oath of allegiance to volunteers.

SACRIFICES OF THE VOLUNTEERS.

Some of the most remarkable instances of patriotic sacrifice of self-interests ever known were developed among the instances of volunteers. In the Seventh Regiment many men of fortune and high social and political positions turned out in the ranks. In the Sixth, Seventy-first and Twelfth the same scenes were presented. In all, lovers left their sweethearts, sons their parents, fathers their families; and many a pillow was wet last night with the tears of those who sorrowed in all the sadness of bereavement. But the women of New-York came bravely to the work. They put courage into the hearts of the young soldiers, and even with fair hands helped to arrange uniforms, and to stow cartridges. We might give numberless instances of the most noble self-denial ever known under similar circumstances.

THE SCENE AT BARNUM'S MUSEUM.

The Astor House, Barnum's Museum, and all the buildings in the vicinity, were crowded to excess to witness the passage of the military. A respectable mass meeting gathered in front of the Astor House, and listened to speeches which were extemporized by various gentlemen. Loud cheers continually rent the air in response to every patriotic sentiment.

A SCRAMBLE FOR FLAGS.

At the corner of Broadway and Duane streets, an amusing scene occured, on the occasion of some one from the top of a building throwing a quantity of flags into the air, which were borne by the breeze for some distance, and excited a furore of patriotic enthusiasm from a vast crowd.

THE TWELFTH, SEVENTY-FIRST AND SIXTH REGIMENTS TO LEAVE ON SUNDAY.

The efforts of the Colonels and other officers of the above regiments to procure an extension of time were successful, and Gen. SANDFORD extended the time to Sunday. The battalion, under command of Col. VOSBURGH, who is the senior Colonel, will assemble at 7 A. M., and proceed to the National Capital.

THE RHODE ISLAND ARTILLERY.

The Providence Marine Artillery arrived in the steamer Empire State yesterday, at 6 A. M., and anchored off the Battery, to await orders. These were duly received and the troop proceeded to Jersey City and were transferred to the steamer Kill von Kull. They left at noon for Elizabethport, intending to proceed thence via rail by Easton, Penn. The following is the list of officers: Capt. C. H. Tompkins; Lieuts. W. H. Reynolds, B. F. Remington, J. Henry, C. Barstow, Augustus M. Power. The steamer brought 155 men, and a full battery of six pieces, four six-pounders, and two howitzers, which are to be replaced very soon by a full battery of James' rifled cannon.

There were thirty men sent back this afternoon by the Empire State to Providence, these being in advance of the number required to man a battery. They were greatly disappointed, and will probably unite with another battery of artillery now in course of formation in Providence. Sergeant HARKNESS was compelled to return on account of sickness.

Gen. CYRUS E. DYER, Commissary and Quartermaster of the Rhode Island Regiment, is stopping at the Astor House.

Col. ARNOLD and Gov. SPRAGUE's staff passed through the City yesterday, en route for Washington. The infantry belonging to the Rhode Island Regiment, will probably arrive off the Battery this evening, in the steamer Empire State, accompanied by Gov. SPRAGUE, and the aids and officers of the regiment.

COL. ELLSWORTH'S VOLUNTEER REGIMENT OF FIREMEN.

The preliminary arrangements for the organization of a Regiment of Zuaves from the ranks of the New-York firemen having been completed on Thursday, yesterday was actively spent in recruiting, and by nightfall the roll at each rendezvous was well filled. Indeed, the firemen are so enthusiastic in the matter, appreciating so highly the complement which the Administration has paid them in inviting their aid, that Col. ELLSWORTH would find no difficulty in obtaining a corps 2,000 strong instead of 800, which is the limit. To-night the companies will meet at their respective head-quarters, and afterwards assemble either at the Arsenal or Palace Garden, as may be designated, and their perfect their organization into companies. They will be formed into squads of four each, who will act as comrades during the campaign, marching, drilling, tenting and messing together. The rolls of the different companies will then be open for the reception of signatures at the General Head-quarters, where the election for officers of the regiment will take place.

The financial affairs of the organization promise to be placed in a flourishing condition, as several wealthy gentlemen of the City, who feel deeply interested in the success of the movement, have volunteered their services and material aid, to put the Regimental exchequer in good condition. It is also proposed to raise sufficient funds in this way to uniform the Regiment before it shall leave the State, and thus relieve the Federal Government of the expense.

It was decided yesterday that the uniform should consist of a grey felt hat, skull fatigue cap, red shirt, (firemen's,) grey jacket, grey flowing pants, (Zouave,) gaiters and blue overcoat. A firm of merchant tailors have contracted to have the requisite number of these uniforms ready by Wednesday night next, and the Regiment will be ready to muster 12 o'clock to-night. We understand that a very fine stand of colors is to be presented to the corps by the Fire Department before it departs from the City. Col. ELLSWORTH has received several letters from prominent merchants, and also from two or three of the City Banks, offering material aid to assist him in the enterprise, and the fact nobly attests their patriotism

THE NEW REGIMENT.

A recruiting-station, for the Ninth and Fifteenth Wards, has been opened by Acting Major J. MANSFIELD DAVIS, on the southwest corner of Tenth-street and Sixth-avenue, for the new Regiment about being organized, under the command of Ex-Col. DURYEA, late of the Seventh Regiment, National Guard. Maj. DAVIS is just the man for the work, and the young men of those Wards who desire to render their country a service cannot find a better place to enroll their names.

MORE TROOPS FROM MASSACHUSETTS.

Yesterday morning the military spirit of the City was cheered by the arrival of the Eighth Regiment of the Massachusetts Militia, following close upon the heels of the Sixth Regiment, which passed through our streets on Thursday. They numbered nine hundred men, filling eighteen cars, which left Boston on Thursday night at 6 P. M. Their list of officers is as follows: Colonel, Timothy Moore; Lieutenant-Colonel, E. W. Hincks; Major, Andrew Ellwell; Adjutant, G. W. Cresey; Paymaster, R. G. Asher; Quartermaster, A. A. Ingalls; Surgeons, B. Breed and W. W. Tapley. The companies are from Salem, Marblehead, Lynn, Newburyport and Pittsfield. Alighting at the dépôt at Twenty-Seventh-street, they proceeded to the Fifth-avenue Hotel where four companies took breakfast. Three companies breakfasted at the Lafarge House, and three at the Astor. As the entire Regiment passed the Brevoort House on Fifth-avenue, Major ANDERSON was loudly cheered. They left, at noon, yesterday, for Washington.

The Third and Fourth Massachusetts Regiments left Boston via Fall River, on Wednesday, where they embarked on the State of Maine for Fort Monroe.

An Irish Regiment is in course of formation at Boston.

The Fifth Regiment of Massachusetts will march immediately.

THE OLD CITIZENS AROUSED.

A meeting of the old citizens upwards of fifty years will be held at Palace Garden, Fourteenth-street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues, on Monday, the 22d day of April, at 7½ P. M., for the purpose of organizing a volunteer regiment for the defence of our City, in the absence of our sons and young men, who may be called away for the defence of the General Government in perpetuating our beloved nation, founded by our immortal WASHINGTON and his associates under the Providence of God.

LIFE INSURANCE AND VOLUNTEERING.

At a meeting of delegates from sixteen Life Companies doing business in this City and elsewhere, held this day, April 19, 1861, the following resolution was passed for the consideration and final decision of the Boards of Directors of the several Companies:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee that the several Life Insurance Companies should give their consent to those assured by them to enter into the Military and Naval service of the United States for such a period and upon such terms as may be agreed. It is understood that an advanced rate will be charged.

COL. WILSON IS WILLING TO GO TO BALTIMORE.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I understand that the people of this City think that if 2,000 men would volunteer to go to Baltimore, they could keep a passage for the troops now on their way to the seat of war. I have 2,000 men who will volunteer to march to Baltimore on Monday afternoon, at 5 P. M., and hold and protect all Union troops passing through. We will want rifles and swords, bayonets, plenty of ammunition, COLT's pistols, knives, gray shirts, felt hats, stout shoes and pants. Respectfully, yours,

WILLIAM WILSON, Colonel,

WILSON'S VOLUNTEERS.

The head-quarters of this Regiment is at No. 618 Broadway. Col. WILSON has already raised 1,500 men, and can raise 2,000 active, muscular young men, good and true, providing that a musket with a sword bayonet, ammunition, a flannel shirt, a felt hat and a good pair of shoes is furnished to each man. He guarantees to start for Baltimore, or anywhere else the Government chooses to send them, by 5 o'clock Monday.

COL. DURYEA'S VOLUNTEER REGIMENT.

At a meeting held last evening at the head-quarters of the Fifth Ward Volunteers now forming, to be enrolled into the "Advance Guard" of Volunteer Militia, to be commanded by Ex-Col. DURYEA, of the famous Seventh Regiment. Mr. CHAS. W. LEWIS was elected Chairman, and Dr. F. G. PETIT JEAN, formerly Surgeon in the French service, was elected Secretary. The purpose of the meeting was stated by the Chairman,—to elect a Captain of the Company,—and nominated JAMES L. WAUGH, formerly Captain of Fifth Company National Guards,—an officer of undoubted experience, and one who would stand by the National flag at all hazards. The members present entered into an election, which resulted in the unanimous

THE REBELS.

Designs of the Conspirators—Interesting Developments.

NEW-YORK, Thursday, April 18, 1861.

During a sojourn of several months in the Gulf States, and more particularly in the very hot-bed of secessionism, South Carolina, and at its very fountain head, Charleston, I obtained possession of several very important facts, which it is absolutely necessary the North should know at this particular time.

While in Charleston I was thrown into constant communication with the leading spirits of the Southern Confederacy from all the seceded States, and having had superior facilities of information, I propose to lay down four distinct facts, which, as they were plainly and openly stated to me as a part of the programme of the new Confederacy, it is important that the North should know them, as forewarned, they will be forearmed.

Firstly, JEFF. DAVIS, his coadjutors and abettors, have laid down on their political chess-board, from the very outset, that the Capital of the nation, Washington, is to be seized. For this purpose, that dangerous fellow and arch-traitor, BEN. MCCULLOCH, was sent to Virginia, after he had accomplished his infamous work in Texas.

It was assumed that if the conspirators could seize Harper's Ferry, with the 90,000 stand of arms, and could get hold of Fortress Monroe, by a coup de main, that Virginia would have to secede whether she wished to or not. Thus sure of Virginia's strong points, they would march on Washington, fortify the heights that command the city, and force Mr. LINCOLN and his entire Cabinet into an ignominious flight. This done, they would raise the Confederate Flag on the National Capitol, and bid defiance to all the Free States. The Capital of the nation seized, and the prestige of the Republic gone, they would find it an easy matter to dictate terms to the representatives of the ex Stars and Stripes. This part of the programme was all arranged, and I was permitted to see every detail of it. There was no pledge of secrecy, and therefore I have no hesitation in openly stating it.

Secondly, as part and parcel of the first, agents have been and are still sent to every Northern arsenal and establishment for the manufacture of arms and munitions of war, for the purpose of gauging accurately the exact amount of warlike material each establishment can turn out daily. The Agents of the C. S. A. are specifically instructed to try and overbid any offers made by the Federal Government for cannon, guns, etc., furnished at these establishments. If they could not offer cash for orders, they were authorized to proffer munificent grants of land, and payment by notes at some future time, with interest allowed, at compound rates. This it was, and still is supposed, would tempt Northern cupidity and the assumed love of the "Almighty Dollar."

Thirdly—A careful list has been prepared of all the officers of the Army and Navy, with tabular columns, as follows: "Reliable, Unreliable Doubtful." The reliable were supposed to be those who were born South, and had married South, and therefore had Southern affiliations. The "Unreliable" covered those who were born North, had married North, and from their previous antecedents, were supposed to be positively and unmistakably for the North, and the North only. The "Doubtful" covered that class who had no special affiliations either way, but who simply adopted war as a profession, and who would be very apt to adopt either side, just according as there was a chance of promotion or of superior emoluments. These men were to be seduced by offers of superior pay and grants of land, which were to be so proffered as to dazzle the imaginations of those who were likely to be affected by such magnificent promises.

Fourthly—The C. S. A. wish the moral support of England and France, and earnestly hope that their agents will obtain a recognition, and therefore they have in the Conventions that have ratified the Constitution, passed over the Slave-trade prohibition. But when they obtain this hoped-for recognition, and feel sure and safe in their Southern Confederate seats, they will gradually relax their assumed hostility to the open Slave-trade, and, first commencing with private importations of negroes from Cuba, they will after a while throw off the mask and openly and avowedly advocate the reopening of the African Slave-trade as a political necessity. In this connection, South Carolinians have openly assured me, within the past month, that if they did not import direct from Africa within a few years, that they could not carry on their peculiar system of Government; that there were vast tracts all through the Gulf States lying idle, simply because white men could not work there, and they had no surplus of the black race to occupy and till the soil; and that as "Cotton was king," and England must have it—if they could import direct and cultivate their now unused fields, they would have all the world completely at their mercy.

The above are facts, absolute facts, and your readers may rely on them implicitly. Let me add, in connection with the above, that where there is one spy sent South from the North, there are a hundred employed North working for the South. I have all the details of this infamous movement, and know that these spies and traitors still hold office in Washington. They fill high places in New-York and other cities; and while assuming to be Union men, they are daily and hourly striking at the very vitals of the National heart.

Let the North arouse itself, and let it understand that all who cannot swear positively that they are for us, are positively against us. Let them see to it, that the sacred porticos of the National Capitol are protected from the attacks of an unscrupulous foe, who openly proclaim that the only true Republic is an absolute Slave Republic; and let them concentrate at once such an overwhelming force close to the grave of the great Father of his Country, that JEFF. DAVIS and his insolent myrmidons dare not lift a finger against it.

FROM MARYLAND.

Public Excitement—Division in General Sentiment—Charleston Expedition—Gov. Hicks and Federal Appointments—Hon. Henry Winter Davis, &c.

BALTIMORE, Wednesday, April 17, 1861.

Never since the commencement of the Mexican war, when the news came of the critical position of Fort Brown, and the gallant command of Gen. TAYLOR, struggling through the everglades and chaparral towards Point Isabel, has there been anything to compare with the painful anxiety and excitement that has prevailed in this city for the last five days. The throngs about the newspaper and telegraph offices—the eagerness with which the "extras" were caught up—the earnest inquiries and emphatic gestures—recalled forcibly to mind the period alluded to—save that the anxiety is more intense, and the excitement seems burdened with a consciousness of a great impending evil—showing how fully our citizens appreciate the difference between a foreign and domestic war.

Public opinion in this State has been too equally divided for us to regard the present national troubles as they are regarded elsewhere. That unanimity of sentiment which appears to exist at the South, and seems also to be prevailing at the North, is not here found; and, in addition to the national troubles, we are met with the sad embarrassment of discord and division among ourselves. I think, however, I can truly say that the expedition to Charleston was here almost universally regarded as inexpedient and unwise. It is one thing to express one's own views of a policy, and another to report correctly those of the public; and whatever may be my own, individually, this certainly seems to be the opinion of those even whose allegiance to the National Government is most unquestioned and sincere. Too late! too late! was the conclusion of every mind; and during the three days of uncertainty that elapsed between the news of the firing of the first gun and of the surrender of Fort Sumter, there was throughout this State a decided condemnation of the course adopted. With the news of the surrender, however, there was a reaction, and feeling has subsided to the old lines that have all along marked the division of public sentiment—except, perhaps, in this city and the Potomac counties, where the sympathy with the South and the opposition to the General Government seem to have gained strength. The question, however, of the popular position of Maryland will be settled at the election to be called in view of the Congress to meet in July, when it will be submitted to the vote of the people.

Gov. HICKS was in this city last night. He has been a good deal in Washington lately, and it is supposed that the appointments here were made on the dictation of himself and Hon. HENRY WINTER DAVIS, who, simultaneously with their publication in the papers, announced himself as a candidate for the next Congress, "on the basis of the unconditional maintenance of the Union." There are a great many warm national men here, who are not pleased with the Know-Nothing predominance in the Presidential appointments; they remember the frauds and outrages charged upon that party, and they regret any measure that is calculated to restore it to power from the disfavor into which it had fallen. Notwithstanding this, the appointments are, as a general thing, strong ones. Had they been all Republicans, they would have at once been seized upon by the Secessionists, and used to promote the cause they advocate.

The Governor has shown his appreciation of the proper object of words, in managing to confound the many inquirers as to what he will do in reply to the requirements of the Secretary of War, for the quota of troops from this State. I have heard it stated, on what, under ordinary circumstances, would be considered as good authority, and as coming directly from himself, that he will refuse to comply with the demand; and, with equal claims to credibility, I have heard it as positively asserted that he will.

Without regard to his course, however, there are a large number of the restless and unemployed in this city and State who will volunteer their services. Clothes, the prospect of comfortable quarters in and about Washington, a soldier's pay and rations, will induce them. Besides which, there is a larger and more respectable class, at present constituting, in my opinion, a majority of the State, who are in favor of sustaining the Federal Government.

How long this will continue to be the case it is impossible to say. If Virginia goes out, such action on her part will produce great changes here. Men who have refused heretofore to admit it, will in that event be forced to believe that the Union is effectually broken. You hear them already declare that in such a contingency Maryland must consult only her material interests.

If you have ever seen a horse tied to a post work at his bridle until he gets it off, you will probably remember that when lose his first operation was to snort, and doubtfully smell his way for some distance, until his walk turns to a trot, which, increasing gradually into the crescendo of a gallop, away he at last goes, ending his course in a general smash. Prophets of evil are not wanting who declare that Maryland and Virginia are now without a headstall, and engaged in the preliminary process of picking their way.

CECIL.

An Appeal for the Helpless.

The nerve-brain and heart of the American people are quivering with patriotic ardor, not unmixed with dire apprehensions of the horrors of war. We have prayed much that the cup might pass by—but God rules, and it is inevitable. Over all our dear, blessed land, hangs the portentous war-cloud, with its lurid lining, which has been rent but to burst upon us—but as surely as the sun dispels the morning mist, so surely will the darkened sky be cleared again; and from out the din and smoke of battle will be revealed to the whole world the glorious form of Liberty, with Justice and Peace in her right hand. Then let us meet it right, honestly, courageously, manfully—if we would have success crowned with glory. This is not the land of conscription, but of Freemen.

Men, Brothers, Soldiers! You are soon to go out from those your hearts hold most dear, but you leave a protector with them, and by the love you bear them—by your country's good name—by the Liberty you fight for—by the God you serve—remember the women and children of our misguided, traitorous brethren, who are eager for our blood. Let every hearthstone, however humble, bond or free, be a sacred altar, for it is an American home! Forget not the weakness of women and the tenderness of childhood! Let your bravery be mixed with gentleness, your ardor with sobriety! Let no dastardly act taint the honor of a single man! But let the influence of a Christian soldiery be felt by our bitterest enemies; so, when the self-waged war is done, they will be elevated in every virtue, rather than degraded. Everywhere carry with you that magnanimity that shall ever characterize the American soldier!

Women of the North, you little know of the bitter chalice which is so often pressed to the lips of Southern wives by the cruel license of Slavery! Think kindly of our sisters, for there are many whom our souls love there; and when our husbands, fathers or brothers go forth in this war of Vice against Virtue, with the sad, though willing good-bye, let us enjoin them to protect those who are like us and our little ones!

AN AMERICAN WOMAN.

—Quite an exciting affair transpired in Boston on March 3. Albert Dittmer, a young German who has worked in Adams' sugar-house, has for some months been paying attention to Margaret Redre, a girl not quite 16 years of age. A few days since she rejected his addresses, and on Wednesday, going to her father's house, he requested to see her alone, as he had something to give her. As she went with him into an adjoining room, he drew a double-barreled pistol, and placing the muzzle against her neck, fired. The poor girl's father saw what Dittmer was at just too late to check him, but he wrested the pistol from him just as he was trying to shoot himself with the other barrel. Foiled in this, Dittmer rushed from the house and plunged into a stream near by with the design of drowning himself, but the bystanders rescued him. The pistol was loaded with powder and a gravelstone, which it is feared passed into the girl's head. There is little hope of her recovery.

LAW REPORTS.

United States District Court.

Before Judge Shipman.

FORFEITURE OF SEAMEN'S WAGES—MUTINY.

Albert Blackman and twenty-three others vs. The ship Staghound.—This was a libel filed to recover wages alleged to be due the libelants as seamen on the ship. They shipped at Hong Kong for a voyage thence to a port or ports in China, and thence to Cuba. The vessel set sail about Dec. 1, 1859, from Hong Kong, and went to Swatow, and there took on board a cargo of some 400 coolies, with which she sailed for Cuba. She is a vessel of about 1,600 tons, and had a crew of thirty-four men, with three mates and two quartermasters and a carpenter. On the 31st of March she arrived in Angier Roads, and on that day a difficulty occurred on board. For some fifty hours, while working up the Roads the men had been kept at work without much sleep, but the evidence showed that this was necessary in the working of the ship. During the 31st, however, the men had rested. About 8 o'clock P. M. the first mate who had been ashore, was below. The third mate had had his shoulder dislocated, and the Captain was in feeble health. The mate was called up by a noise of the men, and found all the crew standing on or near the starboard bridge. He ordered them forward, and Hussey, the second mate, a son of the Captain, stepped forward to enforce the order, when he was stabbed by Morris, one of the crew, with a sheath-knife, in the abdomen, from which wound he died some days after. The first mate stepped up to Morris also, but was also stabbed by him in the breast, though not dangerously. He then went to the cabin and got a pistol, and coming out told the men that he would shoot the first one who came aft. Morris stepped out and told him to "fire and be d—d," on which the mate fired, but missed Morris, hitting one of the crew. The Captain by this time had crawled on deck and threatened to shoot any man who should try to come aft. He was greeted with a storm of abuse from Morris. He then ordered a boat to be manned to go for a surgeon. None of the crew obeyed, or answered to a subsequent call for volunteers to man the boat, and the carpenter and quartermasters with the third mate to steer, with his one arm, went to the British man-of-war Odin for a surgeon and for assistance. Nothing further was done with the crew that night. Next morning they were ordered to wash the decks, but refused to do any duty. They were reasoned with by their officers and by the officers of the Odin, who came on board, but still refused duty, and with the assistance of marines from the Odin they were put in irons. On the 3d of April, a Dutch man-of-war came up from Batavia and the men were mustered and again urged to return to their duty, but would not, even refusing to help get up the anchor. It was weighed, however, with the help of the Coolies, and the ship towed to Batavia, where she arrived on April 8, and on the next day the second mate died of his wound.

At Batavia the American Consul used all his influence to get the men to return to duty. Ten of them did so, and were received back again; the rest persistently refused, and were sent home in irons. They were indicted for revolt and mutiny, and having pleaded guilty to endeavor to make a revolt, were sentenced, one to two years' imprisonment, four for two years and a half, seventeen to eighteen months, and two for thirty days. The ship was detained at Batavia nearly fifty days, at an expense and loss of more than $100 per day. This libel was filed to recover their wages up to the time of the affray, amounting to about $1,760.

Held by the Court—That seamen as a class are entitled to and do receive from Admiralty tribunals peculiar indulgence. Their foibles and frailties are lightly passed over, and in passing upon their offences even the Courts gladly seize upon every mitigating circumstance that can palliate charges of wrong against them. But their own welfare, as well as a just regard for the lives and property that are committed to their charge, demand that they shall not be absolved from the obligations of their contract, and be left to set all its terms at defiance with impunity.

That if seamen abandon a voyage without any just cause, or even colorable excuse, engage in mutinous combinations to destroy the discipline of the ship, defy the authority of the officers, and destroy or peril their lives, by inflicting bodily harm, and greatly damage the owners, they justly forfeit all claim to wages antecedently earned.

That there are three grounds on which it is claimed that these wages are exempt from forfeiture and the libelants excused from the fulfillment of their contract: 1. Ill usage of the men by the officers after they left Hong Kong. 2. The severe duty required of them for two or three days before reaching Angier. 3. Harsh language on the part of the second mate just before the difficulty.

That the evidence of ill usage is too vague and indefinite for the Court to be influenced by it, while it is proved by the libelants' own witness that there was no difficulty between Capt. Hussey and any of the crew.

That the severe duty complained of was shared by the officers and was nothing more than is frequently performed on shipboard, and was clearly within the libelants' contract.

That though the language of the second mate was inexcusable and ought not to have been used, but that it excuses the taking of life, the injuries inflicted on the first mate, the refusal to man a boat and go for medical aid, and the abandonment of the ship in the China seas, with a sick and afflicted captain, who, according to their own admission, had never done harm to the crew, cannot for a moment be admitted.

That as to the claim that the men have been punished and forfeiting their wages would be a double punishment, which is contrary to the policy of the maritime law, it would be enough to say that the libelants are suing upon their contract, which they have utterly failed to perform, and without any plausible excuse for such failure. But even the reluctance of Courts of Admiralty to inflict double punishment may be overcome by the circumstances of the particular case, (the Mentor, 4 Mason, 84,) and the Court is constrained to say that, after a careful consideration of this whole case, it believes the punishment is merited by the libelants.

Libel dismissed.

For libelants, Judge Beebe and Mr. Ridgway; for claimants, Messrs. Benedict, Burr & Benedict.

The Hart-Dillaye Case—The Jury Disagree.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT.

Before Justice Wells.

Stephen A. Dillaye vs. Emanuel B. Hart.—This action is brought to recover damages for an assault made by the defendant upon the plaintiff, by striking him on the head with a cane at the corner of Pine and Nassau streets, on the 28th of July, 1858.

The case has been heretofore published in the TIMES, and is quite familiar to the public.

The defendant having failed to appear when the cause was reached on the calendar his default was taken, and the damages were ordered to be assessed by a jury at the Circuit.

The cause now came on for this purpose, but the jury were unable to agree as to the amount of damages which would compensate the plaintiff for his injuries, and they were, therefore, discharged.

Court of Appeals.

We publish a statement of the following case by request of the counsel for appellants:

Montires vs. Hunt.—This was an appeal from the General Term of the Supreme Court, affirming the decision of the Surrogate, admitting the will of Col. B. F. Hunt, of Charleston, S. C., to probate as a will of personal estate. The will was duly executed according to law, in Charleston, where the testator was then domiciled. He subsequently removed to, and became domiciled in the City of New-York. The present question is as to the effect of a change of domicil, after a will is made of personal property; if it is valid by the law of the place where the party was domiciled when it was made, and not valid by the law of his domicil at the time of his death. It was admitted that the will was not executed in conformity with the laws of New-York. Decision reserved. Wm. Moultrie for appellants. D. D. Field for respondent.

Court of General Sessions.

J. C. HEENAN IN COURT.

In this Court yesterday, Joseph C. Heenan, indicted for burglary, was next tried, Mr. Kochanewiski testified that he lived, and had a tobacco store in Pearl-street. The place was entered by a rear window in the night time, and about $20 worth of tobacco stolen therefrom.

Mary Walker, a colored girl testified that the prisoner brought to her some snuff and tobacco to sell for him. She sold it as directed, but received no compensation.

Officer Welsh, testified to having arrested both the prisoner and the last witness. There were no other witnesses and a jury rendered a verdict of acquittal.

The prisoner was then discharged.

FRIDAY, April 19—P. M.

The Stock Exchange continues greatly excited by the Civil War news, and the continued heavy fall in the stocks of the Southern Border States has a damaging influence upon the whole list. These Stocks fell to 37 ₱ cent. for Virginias, 41½ for Tennessees, 70 for Kentuckys, and 40 for Missouris. Nearly three hundred thousand dollars in the various descriptions were forced on sale, nearly all for Cash, and the eagerness to realize upon them was more decided than at any time since the fresh panic of Monday set in. Most of the purchases were said to have been made to fulfill short contracts, but some few other orders were undoubtedly sent into the Board to buy Virginias, Missouris, &c., as a speculation on the very low figures established yesterday. The pressure to sell is principally from holders for Western Banking account. The discredit and return of the currency for which the Stocks are in pledge in Illinois and Wisconsin, and the cash advances made upon Missouri Stock in St. Louis, all demand productive sales, without reference to the precipitate [illegible] which has taken place, and thus we have financial and political panic combining at the same instant to depress prices. The position and probable course of the Border States since the proclamation of the President on Monday last, are still watched with much interest, but the public confidence in their adherence to the Government, under the present trial, is weakened every day by the tone of the telegraphic dispatches which appear in the morning papers. While the prevailing feeling is that these States will not readily consent to join the Montgomery Confederacy, the fear is that nearly all of them may be forced, by the secession or disloyal element within their respective borders, to assume, for the time, an attitude equally antagonistic to the Federal Government. The New-York and Western Railway shares were again much agitated by the War dispatches from hour to hour, and the heavy decline referred to in the Border States Stocks. The news of the first blood drawn in the streets of Baltimore this afternoon, created a gloomy feeling, and the disposition was to sell at a decline of 1@2 ₱ cent. from the morning prices. At a late hour, there was a partial improvement, though not sufficient, even on the assurance that the Baltimore mob had been suppressed, and the City placed under martial law, to establish any decided rally. At 70 ₱ cent. and under, New-York Central attracted a demand at the early Board, and the point is one which, in past fluctuations of this active and favorite stock, has seldom failed to bring about a sudden upward turn. But at the afternoon Board sales were made at 69@69½ ₱ cent. cash, and 68, seller 30 days, about the lowest figure made since the panic of 1857. The other Railways, both of New-York and the West, sympathized, and in some instances the fall was to unusually low figures, Rock Island being done at 38@37 ₱ cent., and Hudson at 34 ₱ cent. Pacific Mail and Panama Shares both fell off 6@8 ₱ cent., mainly on account of the apprehension of privateering and the interruption of business across the Isthmus. The Railway mortgages were generally lower, when pressed on sale, but in this department of the list there is less eagerness to press sales than in any other.

Soon after the adjournment of the Second Board, the Stock Brokers all deserted the Street to witness the departure of the Seventh Regiment. The following quotations were made up at 3½ o'clock:

Central	69	Galena	57¾
Erie	18¾	Toledo	24
Hudson	35	Illinois Central	58½
Harlem Preferred	30	Rock Island	37
Michigan Central	42	Virginias	37½
Michigan Guaranteed	29	Missouris	40
Panama	101½	Tennessees	41½
Pacific	60	Federal Loan '81	87½

The War excitement completely overshadows the Discount and Foreign Exchange operations of the Street. The latter, for Saturday's steamer, closes 107 ₱ cent. for standard Bankers', and 106@106½ for transient Bank signatures, while some good Merchant bills have been done at 105@105½ ₱ cent. In Money rates there is no change. The Domestic Exchanges south of Philadelphia, and all northwest of Ohio, are completely upset by the political and currency troubles in those quarters. Telegraphic advice from St. Louis is to the effect that Exchange on New-York is up to 10 ₱ cent. The movement of the Banks in the four principal cities of the Union, in which weekly reports are made, as shown by their last statements, is as follows:

A GENTLEMAN WRITES TO LEA & PERRINS thus: "I have carried a bottle of your Worcestershire Sauce in a tour I have just completed through Spain and Portugal, and believe I owe my present state of health to its use. Your Sauce is Stomachic and I think medicinal. I can with truth say there is nothing in a traveler's baggage so essential to his comfort, at least in these countries, as your Sauce."

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

A NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHOR OF "THE SEMI-DETACHED HOUSE."

NOW READY,
THE SEMI-ATTACHED COUPLE.
Edited by Lady THERESA LEWIS.
1 volume, 16mo. Price $1.

Read what the English critics say of it:

From the Saturday Review.

The only novel that has been written in Miss Austin's style of which Miss Austin need not have been ashamed.

From the Athenæum.

We have read very few novels which are so pleasant as this "Semi-Attached Couple." It has really done our heart good. It is clever, very clever.

From the Examiner.

In light, feminine satire, free from ill-nature, this novel excels.

From the Spectator.

The author delights us with her gaiety, her simple refinement of manner, the happy ease of her mind in portraiture, her wit and humor, and her tenderness, that never degenerates into sentimentality.

As a thoroughly organized Private High School, which is one of the oldest and best sustained in the City, having Junior, Middle and Senior Departments, two hundred pupils, (from seven years old and upwards,) and twelve professors, the completeness of its instruction in preparing students for business or college, the beauty and healthfulness of its location, the accessibility of its central position from every part of New-York and the neighboring cities, and the large, well-ventilated, light and admirably contrived rooms, filling three stories of a building erected by the proprietors expressly for its accommodation, are generally known. Its numerous classes of every grade, in Latin, Greek, Mathematics, Modern Languages, Commercial Studies, Drawing and Painting with all the English branches, offer unusual advantages to those to whom "time is money," and who cannot afford to waste this precious article on worthless instruction among promiscuous masses.

Students for West Point, Harvard, Columbia, and other Colleges are admitted at any time to the classes for which they are prepared. Also, JUNIORS at reduced prices, and all charged only from the time of entering.

No. 128 BROADWAY, March 11, 1861.

G. W. CLARKE, Esq.,

MY DEAR SIR: In the pressure of professional engagements, I forgot to excuse the withdrawal of my two sons last November. I desire now to say to you that a change of residence to the country rendered it necessary, and that at an early day they will, I trust, return to your excellent Institution, to remain until fitted for College. Of the unsurpassed advantages of your School I can bear witness, for the progress of my sons under your care was all and more than I could have expected. NEWS OF THE DAY.

The gratifying news reaches us from Washington that the President has issued a Proclamation announcing a blockade of the Southern ports. This important movement effectually disposes of JEFF. DAVIS' letters of marque and reprisal.

Blood was spilled yesterday in the streets of Baltimore—the first blood of the real struggle between Secession and Union; and, as in the Revolution, Massachusetts blood has been the first to flow. It was intimated in our Washington dispatches yesterday morning that a desperate combination had been formed in Baltimore to resist the passage through that place of Northern troops, and the events of yesterday prove such to have been the case. The Pennsylvania and the Massachusetts volunteers reached there at about the same time; and, on attempting to pass through to the Washington dépôt, were opposed by a mob, armed with guns and paving-stones. The struggle appears to have been a most desperate one, the police, headed by the Mayor, being apparently utterly powerless to aid the passage of the troops. The Pennsylvanians were unprepared for any such demonstrations, but eventually succeeded in crossing the City; but the Massachusetts men were opposed with such fierceness that they were obliged in self-defence to fire upon the mob, and killed and wounded a number of them,—not, however, before the mob had fired upon them, and killed two of their number. They then forced their way through, reached the dépôt, and left for Washington amid a volly of firearms and paving-stones. They reached Washington last evening. The latest dispatches from Baltimore, state that comparative quiet has been restored. The military were under arms, and the police were out in full force. A large Union mass meeting was held last night, at which the Mayor made a speech, and at which Gov. HICKS was also present.

The Secessionists are happily circumvented in their designs against Harper's Ferry. Lieut. JONES, in command at that post, having been advised that a force of 2,500 Virginians, by order of Gov. LETCHER, were on the march to take possession, destroyed all the arms and munitions of war, and burnt the buildings down. He then withdrew his command under cover of the night, just in time to escape a collision with the Virginia force, which were close at hand. The command made a forced march of thirty miles, and reached Carlisle Barracks, in Pennsylvania, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

There seems to be no room to doubt that the Virginia Convention have voted to secede, but as the Ordinance was passed in secret session, its exact terms are not yet known. There is little doubt, from the movements which have recently taken place in the State, that the Secessionists of Virginia, like those of the other recreant States, think it necessary to accompany the act of Secession with the theft of all the Federal property within her borders.

The departure of the Seventh Regiment for Washington was the great feature of City excitement yesterday. At a comparatively early hour, large numbers of people commenced to assemble in Broadway. The passing of the Eighth Regiment of Massachusetts militia fed the fire of their patriotic ardor, and hour by hour, they continued to pour into that general thoroughfare, till it was completely filled. The Regiment left their Armory shortly before 4 P. M., formed in Lafayette-place, and proceeded on their way to the Jersey City Ferry. The enthusiasm of the citizens was almost unparalleled. It was participated in by both sexes and all classes. At BALL & BLACK'S store Major ANDERSON witnessed the march, and, on being recognized by the Regiment and the crowd, was saluted with military honors and true military cheers on the one hand, and vociferous demonstrations of popular applause on the other. To escape a too manifest approbation from the multitude, he had to be passed out by a side door. The occasion, altogether, from the time the Seventh quitted their Armory till their entering the cars at Jersey City, was one of the most exciting ever known, and cannot fail to be remembered during the lifetime of all who witnessed it. Military movements throughout the country continue with even increased activity and enthusiasm.

The Boston Banks have authorized the Treasurer of the State, under the authority of Gov. ANDREWS, to draw upon them to the amount of ten per cent. of their capitals as a loan to meet the requirements of the present emergency. The sum thus proferred amounts to over three and a half millions of dollars!

By the arrival of the steamship Quaker City we have advices from Havana to the 15th inst. The intentions of the Spanish authorities relative to San Domingo has been rendered sufficiently apparent by the continued departure of war steamers and transports for that Island, with troops and all the military paraphernalia. One of the latest departures was that of the screw-steam-frigate Princessa de Asturias, on the evening of the 13th, with a Spanish regiment on board. It was thought in Havana, that in consequence of the death of his grandmother, Prince ALFRED would decline to visit that city, and would return immediately to England.

Advices received here from Aspinwall, New-Granada, state that the British steamer Conway, with dates from Carthagena to April 2, arrived at Aspinwall just as the North Star was leaving on April 4. It was reported that MOSQUERA had been routed by Gen. POSADA, of the Government Army; that the Government had reoccupied the City of Ocana; that the whole State of Antioquia had returned to its allegiance to the Government, and that the Government forces had reoccupied the port of Nare, the key to Antioquia. It is best to wait for a confirmation of this news, however, before receiving it with implicit reliance.

The steamship Niagara, which has been due at Halifax for a day or two, reached that port yesterday. Her detention was caused by running aground in a fog, off Queenstown harbor. Her news is fully anticipated by the steamship Kedar.

In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, there was only one trial. The prisoner was charged with larceny, but was acquitted. The activity which has prevailed for the past three weeks in this Court has cleared off nearly all the business before it.

There was increased excitement yesterday on the Stock Exchange, and a further considerable fall of 8@10 ℘ cent. on the Stocks of the Border Southern States. The New-York and Northwestern Railways fell off 1@2 ℘ cent. from the lowest sales of the day before. Exchange on London closed 106@107 ℘ cent.; a wide range of quotation under a dull demand for this day's steamer.

Business operations were partially suspended yesterday. The departure of the Seventh Regiment, the pride of New-York, for the National Capital, was the all-engrossing topic. Transactions in Breadstuffs were restricted; Flour and Wheat were lower; Corn was firmer. A fair inquiry prevailed for Cotton and Provisions. Pork advanced. The principal sales of Coffee were 1,300 bags Rio, by auction. Sugars, Molasses, Tobacco, Metals, Fish, Hides, Leather, Seeds, Spices, Hemp, and Hops were quiet. The changes in other branches of business were not important.

The Great Conflict—Where shall the First Blows Fall?

The secession of Virginia has cleared the skies. A treacherous enemy has deserted our ranks, who, while she remained, was incessant in her efforts to encourage the rebellion, to shield its outrages, and to arm the traitors, with an assurance that she would join them at the right moment in overthrowing a Government which she has been embarrassing to the utmost of her power by a feigned loyalty. She has now elected to make her soil the battle field. She could not have done us a better service.

If secession was incomplete without Virginia, we can crush it in its great leader, who brings it directly within reach of our blows. In dictating terms to Virginia, we can do it to the whole Union. We can dictate these at Richmond in sixty days, if we will. We can now make the war a short one. It should be ended in one campaign. A column of 25,000 men should, at the earliest moment possible, march from Washington on Richmond. Another, equally strong, should proceed from James River to Fort Monroe. Resistance to two well-appointed armies would be impossible. Once at Richmond, we should hold 500,000 slaves, rated in Virginia to be worth $400,000,000, as hostages for the good conduct of the enemy. Should we be forced to extreme measures, all the other States would take warning by the example made of their great leader. If Mr. LINCOLN does not now strike an effectual blow, upon him will rest the responsibility of a prolonged and cruel war. If Mr. BUCHANAN had, at the right moment, seized and hung a half dozen of the traitors, treason would have been quelled, and thousands of innocent lives, and the waste of hundreds of millions of property, would have been saved. Let Mr. LINCOLN take warning by the criminal neglect of his predecessor, and learn that in a great emergency, prompt action, which may involve 10,000 lives, will be the certain means of saving ten-fold that number, and the horrors of a prolonged civil war.

In Virginia, as the head and front of secession, we have a position the most vulnerable to attack. We hold complete control of all her outlets to the seas. With Maryland remaining loyal, we command her on every side but one. From Fort Monroe expeditions can penetrate by water far into her interior. Washington will soon be an immense fortified camp. Expeditions can penetrate the State from Pennsylvania, at numerous points on the North, and on the West from the Ohio, should not that section prove loyal, as we firmly believe and hope it will. Threatened on every side, she can concentrate no large bodies of troops, if she had them. If she had such, she could not keep them in the field, for want of means. She has no money in her treasury. She cannot borrow a dollar, nor can she raise any considerable sums by taxation.

At the very moment we are striking a blow at Virginia, we should fit out a large naval and military force to operate against the Cotton States. Both Charleston and Savannah might be threatened and captured by a force landed at Port Royal, a deep estuary about equi-distant from these two cities. The capture of the City of Mobile, which is almost entirely unprotected, would be an easy matter. New-Orleans might be threatened or assailed at the same time. Such an expedition would keep President DAVIS and all the forces he could raise at home, and constantly on the look-out for his winged enemy, which, beyond reach of attack, could select its own time and place to deal a decisive blow. Such a force would compel Virginia to fight out her own battles single-handed, and with probably half of her people loyal, against the overwhelming force of the United States.

In this contest two issues of the deepest moment are involved; the supremacy of the laws, and the moral and political superiority of the North. We cannot admit the right of secession, because we cannot admit a proposition that involves our own destruction. If the will of a particular community, or individual, is paramount, then we accept anarchy as our necessary condition. We will never admit such a proposition. We will fight to the last man and the last musket first. Neither will we admit Slavery to be equally desirable as freedom. We will live up to our compact, and protect it as property in every loyal State, as we have done without complaint for seventy years. But when Slavery assumes a hostile attitude, and is fighting to put a chain round our necks, we will put forth all our power to confine it within its present area, and if no other resort is left us, we will proclaim freedom in its place. Mr. DAVIS has taken the initiative, and invites pirates and privateers to prey upon our private property. We will show him that we can retaliate with thousand-fold force, and remove from our system an element which has brought upon us our present misfortunes, which has always been a source of discord, and which must always continue to be so while it exists.

Another point of great strategical importance is Cairo, at the confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. This commands completely the States of Missouri and Kentucky, and a portion of Tennessee, and would be an admirable base of operations for a force sent down the Mississippi. Upon this point a large force should be immediately concentrated, amply supplied with materials and munitions of war.

Now that we are in for a fight, let us finish it at a blow. The first thing is to know where we stand, to learn who are our friends, and who our foes. We want no relations that can embarrass the unity of our purposes or plans. We are infinitely stronger with Virginia an open enemy, than a treacherous ally. If Kentucky, or Maryland, or Tennessee, are not heartily with us, let them follow the example of Virginia. We want no friends who will be holding one of our hands while we are striking with the other. We not only want to have the issue squarely presented, but we want the battle fought with the antagonists ranged under the appropriate banners.

The Pirate Flag.

Mr. JEFFERSON DAVIS, in his proclamation inviting applications for letters of marque and reprisal against Northern commerce, has hung out the true flag of the Confederates. Nothing more was needed to secure for the Southern movement the scorn and indignation of the civilized world. If there had been any doubt before of the attitude of commercial men in this country and of the commercial interest throughout the world towards the new Confederacy, this proclamation would have ended it. Under any circumstances, privateering has become an odious, indeed an infamous weapon of warfare. The whole tendency of modern civilization has been towards an amelioration of the laws of war. It is universally felt that the destruction of private property, in case of war, is a relic of barbarism, and that hostilities ought to be restricted to the public forces of the hostile powers. And although this principle has not yet secured recognition as part of the code of international law, the practice of nations has been towards its adoption. During the Crimean war each nation prohibited its subjects from accepting letters of marque, and privateering was formally discarded by Great Britain as a weapon of war.

The United States have recognized the salutary character of this principle more than once in their legislation. An act of Congress still stands upon the statute book, by which all American citizens are prohibited from fitting out privateers against friendly powers; and all the other nations of the world have enacted similar laws. Indeed, we have at the present time, treaties with France, Holland, Sweden, Prussia, Great Britain, Spain, and other Powers, by which it is agreed that no subject or citizen of either shall accept a commission or letter-of-marque to assist an enemy in hostilities against the other, under pain of being treated as a pirate. These treaties put an extinguisher at once upon any hope which JEFF. DAVIS may entertain of enlisting in his service privateers from any of the Powers of Europe,—or of securing the toleration of any European nation for his letters of marque and reprisal. Suppose that vessels were to be captured under authority of his letters:—into what port on the face of the earth could they be taken with the slightest hope of being recognized as lawful prize? Even if JEFF. DAVIS' kingdom were a legitimate nation, duly recognized by the world as an established and independent power, the treaties to which we have already alluded would shut him out from all the ports of the civilized nations of Europe. There is not one in which he would not instantly be condemned as a pirate. And if any man, in this country or any other, permits himself to be enticed into accepting one of these letters and acting upon it, he may rely upon meeting the fate which his crimes deserve. Privateering, under the most favorable circumstances, is but one degree removed from piracy. It is only the positive law and usage of nations that establishes any difference. And in this case international law, treaty stipulations, and every consideration which nations hold sacred in their dealings with each other, brand the proclamation of JEFF. DAVIS as a formal sanction of piracy.

We have already alluded to the bearing of this document upon the general principles on which the pending contest is to be waged. President LINCOLN has already proclaimed to the South his purpose not in any way to interfere with the rights of property. JEFF. DAVIS responds by letting loose every pirate he can hire, to attack and plunder the private property of citizens of the United States. He may rely upon it he will not be permitted to play this one-sided game for any length of time. The great mass of the people of the Union are conservative on the subject of Slavery. They have not the slightest desire to meddle with it in any way,—nor would they tolerate, under ordinary circumstances, any interference with it from any quarter. It would be perfectly easy to-day, hostile and intolerable as has been the conduct of the Southern States, to raise a force in the North to put down a slave insurrection in any one of the Southern States except South Carolina. But this temper will not endure the tests to which Mr. DAVIS and his fellow-conspirators are inclined to put it. The first seizure of an American vessel by one of his privateers will let loose upon the South more John Browns than he can hire pirates in a year. And if he doubts the effect of such an invasion upon the people of the Southern States, Gov. WISE can enlighten his mind upon that subject.

JEFFERSON DAVIS might as well have thrown a lighted match into a powder magazine, as menace the commerce of the North with privateers. The effect of his proclamation upon our community has been only to deepen and make tenfold more intense the hatred and indignation of the public. Our people begin to realize the real character of the foe with whom they have to deal. All the illusions they have hitherto cherished about fraternity and kindly feeling towards their sister States have been rudely dispelled. Those whom they had looked upon as brothers prove to be pirates. The men whom we have associated with ourselves, as sharing with us the glories and blessings of our common country, turn out to be the assassins of the Republic. They cannot even make war in the spirit of a civilized nation, but go back to the habits and practices of the barbarism of a hundred years ago.

There is but one way of dealing with such people. We are to measure our strength with theirs,—and may GOD defend the right!

A GRATIFYING ANNOUNCEMENT.—The following dispatch is published in the Richmond papers:

> MONTGOMERY, Saturday, April 13.
> To Hon. H. A. Wise:
> By authority of Hon. L. P. WALKER, Secretary of War, I have to inform you, for general publicity, that on last night reinforcements were thrown into Fort Pickens, by the Government at Washington, in violation of the Convention existing between that Government and this Confederacy. JOHN TYLER, JR.

We are greatly obliged to JOHN TYLER, Jr., for the valuable and most gratifying information which this dispatch conveys. His object in sending it is apparent from the glaring falsehood which he appends to it. His purpose was to make the people of Virginia believe that the Government of the United States had agreed not to reinforce Fort Pickens, —and that in doing so they had violated that pledge. It is scarcely necessary to say that the story was a sheer fabrication, since the Government has never as yet recognized in any way, by word or act, the Confederacy which Mr. TYLER represents. In this part of the country we forgive Mr. TYLER'S falsehood for the sake of the gratifying information which he has coupled with it. We trust that Fort Pickens has been so thoroughly reinforced as to defy the attacks of the piratical rebels who are investing it.

The War Spirit Rising Higher.

Yesterday was presented in our streets a spectacle that must continue memorable through generations yet unborn—the 19th of April, a day already famous in our history, having acquired a new and stronger claim on national recollection and gratitude. Amidst unparalleled enthusiasm the volunteer soldiers of New-England and New-York struck hands in our streets on their march to the rescue of the National Capital. And beautiful the streets looked, with bannered parapets, peopled roofs, windows thronged with sympathetic beauty, and sidewalks densely packed with multitudes of excited and applauding citizens.

But it required only a single glance at the faces of this great multitude, to become convinced that no mere gala or festive purpose had called out this magnificent demonstration. In every eye burned the unquenchable fire of patriotic ardor, and in every heart was the aspiration to join in defence of one common country. Old men, who must have seen the earlier struggles of our history, came forth to bless the young soldiers on their march to take share in a grande and more noble struggle than any the American continent has yet witnessed. Mothers, with tears of joyous pride half blinding them, helped to buckle on the accoutrements of their sons, and kissed them as they went forth to battle. Sisters and sweethearts, fathers and wives, friends and relatives,—all were represented, and had their individual characteristics in the immense concourse of life which yesterday held possession of Broadway.

Perhaps if there could have risen from the dead one of the old Girondists, after being bloodily put away to repose during the great French Revolution, and if he had been dropped down here in New-York,—by allowing a little for advance in costumes and architecture, he might have seen many curious points of resemblance between the scenes and the impressions here yesterday and those of seventy years ago in Paris. Then the inspiration of Liberty ran through the people, and the most powerful aristocracy of Europe was destroyed. The result of the struggle which cropped out here yesterday and bore its first fatal fruits in the streets of Baltimore, some future historian must record.

It was with pride that our City saw her first quota of soldiers departing en route for Washington, to take their share with the troops of other loyal States in the contest now inaugurated. It was such a spectacle as only New-York could exhibit—the spectacle, instead of being a great pageant merely, having all the grandeur and solemnity of a step in one of those crises of events which involve individual and national life—engraving new names and new dynasties upon the tablets of History.

The children of New-York, the Seventh Regiment, our pets and pride—eight hundred of our chosen young men with threads woven to hold them, wherever they go, to the million hearts they leave behind—moved down Broadway and started for the Capital. Eight hundred young citizens, each with musket and knapsack, borne along calmly and impassively on a tide of vocal patriotism, making the air resonant with shouts and warm with the breath of prayer. Our reporters elsewhere give their report of this magnificent spectacle. But the dreadful and significant meaning which lay within it all, who can give?

The Events of Yesterday.

Yesterday was an important day in the history of the impending conflict. The Massachusetts and Pennsylvania troops, on their way to defend the capital of the Republic against the threatened attack of traitors, were assailed by a mob in Baltimore, and were compelled to fight their way through that city. They did it gallantly, however, and are now at the capital.

The American troops at Harper's Ferry, only 43 in number, finding that they were to be assailed by an overwhelming force of 2,500 Virginians, burned the armory and the arsenal, destroying 15,000 stand of arms, together with the machinery for manufacturing arms, and reached Carlisle, in Pennsylvania, after a forced night march of thirty miles. This snatches from the traitors an important supply of arms, and what is of still more importance, deprives them of the facilities for making more. It was an admirable step, and will go very far towards thwarting the plans of the Virginia Secessionists.

A portion of the Rhode Island Regiment, under command of Gov. SPRAGUE, passed through this City yesterday, and were due at Baltimore at an early hour this morning. If their march is obstructed, the traitors who impede it will go home with thinner ranks than they had when they came. The Rhode Islanders had with them a battery of JAMES' rifled cannon, in the use of which they have been drilled by Gov. SPRAGUE for several years; and they will have not the slightest difficulty in opening a passage wide enough for all practical purposes. Our Seventh Regiment, which went yesterday, had also artillery, with them, and will give a good account of themselves, no matter what opposition they may encounter. We have not the slightest apprehensions about their reaching Washington.

If there are any UNION men in Baltimore, now is the time for them to show their mettle. If they cannot render their City safe for the transit of troops, marching with no other object than to save the Capital of the Nation from seizure,—that Capital which WASHINGTON planned, and gave with his name as an eternal possession to the great Republic, they may as well join the ranks of the Secessionists at once. It is important that the friends of the Union should cease to rely upon false friends. If the friends of the Constitution in Baltimore can restrain the mad violence of the traitors in their midst, let them do so at once. If they cannot, their brethren from other States will do it for them. If troops on their way to Washington are to have a fight for transit at Baltimore regularly, it would be well to put that city at once under the absolute control of Union men, from other parts of the country.

Maryland and Virginia have played the game of fast and loose long enough. Their citizens must now take their stand, on one side or the other, and be prepared to fight for it.

Mexico and the Crisis.

The New-Orleans papers profess to have information from Vera Cruz to the effect that the Mexican Government is disposed to cease diplomatic relations with the United States, substituting intimate and friendly arrangements with the rebel leaders at Montgomery. To this end, we are told, the present vacant mission at Washington will not be filled; and we are invited to believe that an envoy with offers of recognition will soon visit the Confederate capital. Not content with stating the facts, assuming them to be such, these correspondents oblige us with a synopsis of the reasoning which has decided this preference. The Liberal Government, they assert, was so profoundly disgusted with the vote of Northern Senators against the McLane Treaty that they naturally regard the Administration at Washington as unfriendly; and turn for sympathy to that of Montgomery, whose members on the occasion of the same vote, behaved so entirely to the satisfaction of Señor JUAREZ and his Cabinet. And therefore this new aspect of Mexican diplomacy.

Readers of this paper will be obliging enough to remember how warmly its columns advocated the ratification of the treaty, and, in deploring the error which defeated it, how we urged the risk so incurred of forfeiting the regard of a people whose friendship can, in no circumstances, be a matter of indifference to us. The vanity of fulfilled prophecy might therefore tempt us to accept the New-Orleans story as a realization of our prognostication; but unfortunately, the case is so grossly overstated as to merit nothing but ridicule.

We have reason to know the truth with regard to Mexico to be, that the rebellion in the Southern States is regarded there with unmingled alarm, and the Goverment is anxiously casting about for some foreign alliance which shall protect it against the well-understood designs of the Secessionists. The arrival of Mr. CORWIN is anticipated with eagerness, because it will give some assurances on this momentous subject. No one knows better than the advisers of President JUAREZ that the principal motive of the insurgents is to make the Gulf of Mexico a "secession pond," surrounded by slave territory, with ports accessible to the Slave-trade. The programme was impudently avowed by the traitor SLIDELL, when, like another Catiline, he bade farewell to the Senate in a speech full of defiance and menace. To seek shelter in the friendship of these declared enemies, who only voted for the treaty, because it facilitated their ambitious plans of territorial acquisition, and who found in the resistance of the North an additional provocation and outrage, would be much the same degree of political prudence as that of the sheep in choosing the wolf for their shepherd. No such determination is in the least probable; and if no appointment be for the moment made—an envoy at Washington—the mission is doubtless declared by a desire to await the coming of the new American Minister, and from an acquaintance with his views and instructions ascertain the most judicious course to be pursued by their own representative.

The Position of Maryland—Military Necessities.

The following is an extract of a letter from a gentleman in Maryland, who is one of the largest landowners in the State. His suggestions merit prompt attention on the part of the authorities:

> MARYLAND, Sunday, April 15, 1861.
> "I wish it could be distinctly given out that there is a settled determination that in no event shall secession be permitted to cross the Potomac River: that the honor and dignity of the nation require that it should never relinquish its present seat of Government; and that whatever Virginia may do, (and I believe she will secede,) Maryland shall always nolens volens, be kept under the authority of the Government at Washington. A timely and distinct announcement of such a determination, as a thing settled, on the part of those who are supposed to understand and represent the views of the Administration, will, I am pretty sure, do much to prevent trouble in that quarter in future. The Secessionists are working in the dark with us; but they are making Herculean efforts to take Maryland with Virginia out of the Union. A distinct understanding that the Administration regards it as indispensable in a military point of view that there shall be no secession north of the river on which the Federal city stands, will do more to head off the conspirators amongst us than anything else. Such an idea impressed upon the popular mind in Maryland would help our public virtue mightily.
> Certainly, if the Administration do intend to keep (and I shall consider them crazy if they do not) the City of Washington, they cannot permit any enemy to be stationed in the rear of that position. Maryland will be indispensable (especially if Virginia secedes) as a military base, for operations against all foes south of the Potomac. The sooner that thing can be distinctly understood, the less trouble we shall have on the subject, and the better it will be for all parties.
> Maryland will also be indispensable as a general rendezvous, or point d'appui for the army of the Republic. If some 25,000 or 50,000 troops were at this moment 'waiting orders' at Washington, Annapolis, Baltimore and Wilmington, the fact would, I think, help greatly the 'easy virtue' of a few grumbling politicians amongst us. Not that I doubt in the least the fidelity to the Union, at present, of a large majority in these cities; but if Virginia does secede, they are destined to have trouble with a few secession conspirators amongst them, unless some such demonstration shall take place to show the futility of their designs. But if it is distinctly understood that even if they succeed in inspiring the people of their State with a wish to go out of the Union, there are military reasons why she cannot be permitted to do so, (reasons which apply especially to her,) then it certainly will save much trouble."

OUR ZOUAVE CORPS OF FIREMEN.—The zeal and enthusiasm with which the New-York Firemen have responded to the appeal made them by the Federal Government to organize a Regiment from their ranks, does honor to their bravery and patriotism. Already the number called for have enrolled their names, and the formation of the Regiment, even in its minutest details, will have have been completed before to-morrow morning. The gallant fellows are ready at once to enter upon any duties which the emergency of affairs may present, and we cordially approve of a suggestion which has been made to equip them completely ere they depart from the City. This can only be done through the bounty of our citizens, who should be as prompt in subscribing the sinews of war in the way of funds for this object, as the banks of this and other Free States, to say nothing of private citizens, have been in offering immense sums of money for the use of the Federal Government.

Might not the Common Council think it worth their while, now that they are decorating their chambers with the Stars and Stripes, and singing the "Star-Spangled Banner," after the adjournment of their meetings, and seem to be imbued with a universal fervor of patriotism—might they not turn their attention to this matter, and vote a little of the public money, of which they are usually so lavish, for this good end. A thousand men might be equipped for the round sum of $20,000, and the expenditure of money in this way would be willingly sanctioned by the public if the desired result should not be accomplished by private munificence. At all events the suggestion is worthy their immediate consideration.

It behooves the Government to see that this efficient corps, whose ordinary duties have already fitted it for the most arduous undertakings incident to a soldier's life, shall be fully equipped and furnished with the means to provide against any such emergency as would appear to have overtaken some of the troops which have already passed on to Washington. There should be no lack of accoutrements and of the earnest material which constitutes, outside of his personal bravery, a soldier's best defence. Arms of the best kind and plenty of ammunition should be included, and placed in their possession before they leave the City.

IMPORTANT FROM VIRGINIA.

The Movements at Norfolk—How the Revolutionists Proposed to get a Navy—The Debt of Virginia and her Prospects for the Future.

From Our Own Correspondent.

RICHMOND, Va., Wednesday, April 17, 1861.

Virginia has cast her sword in the scales, and it is on the side of the Revolutionists! I do not say that the Convention has passed an Ordinance of Secession, though that may be already true. Many believe it, but the Convention has been two days in secret session, and nothing of their acts is yet positively known. Whatever may occupy them, however, is simply matter of detail. Secession is a foregone conclusion. If the Convention willed it otherwise, it could not now prevent it. The State is even at this moment in open revolt against the Government of the United States, and men on the march to seize the Federal property within its borders.

It was announced this morning, that the people at Norfolk had sunk three vessels in the mouth of Elizabeth River, thus effectually closing in the harbor three war vessels of the United States—the Merrimac, the Cumberland, and a third, name not recollected. It was whispered in my hearing, (where I could not help but hear it,) as a great secret, that the military of Richmond were under orders to march to certain points not mentioned. I went on the street shortly after and found the liveliest movement there. Men, mostly young men, with slick, glazed caps and juvenile attempts at moustaches, dashing up and down, and fairly dancing for joy, and proclaiming to acquaintances that they chanced to meet, that the "First Regiment was ordered to Norfolk;" and the object was stated by those who were quiet enough to stop and talk about it, to be to take the United States men-of-war that had been entrapped in a Virginia harbor, as above described.

No doubt there will be a large force concentrated immediately at Norfolk, the Gosport Navy-yard will be seized, and if a favorable opportunity be thought to exist, Fort Monroe will be captured.

Instructions—perhaps not official—but undoubtedly instructions from Revolutionists, have gone forward to Jefferson and surrounding counties to seize and occupy Harper's Ferry. And the attempt will be made, and it is boasted publicly here that it will be successful. It has been proposed to Gov. LETCHER to throw the entire organized volunteer force of the State, about 16,000 strong, forward to the northern line of the State; and especially to seize and fortify the heights south of the Potomac and opposite to Washington City. All these movements are doubtless at this moment in progress of execution.

By such rapid strides do revolutions move! Two days ago there was a lingering hope of averting general war. Now Virginia is rushing frantically into the fight, while her Convention in sealed silence consults on her destiny. There is a madness in the movement which devils alone could prompt.

By her insane action Virginia transfers the war from South Carolina to her own soil. And she will have little help from the Confederate States in waging the war she invites. In the long extended and defenceless coast of the South and on the Mississippi River, there will be occupation for all the men that the Confederate States can keep in the field. Virginia will be left comparatively alone and with one hand tied by Slavery, to resist the overwhelming numbers of the United States Government.

I showed you in a previous letter how poorly Virginia is prepared for any contest at arms at the present time. She has $45,000,000 of liabilities, and her people are already fleeing from taxation She has only about 140,000 men capable of bearing arms, and she has very few guns or other implements of war. In her volunteer force there are only about 2,547 sabres and pistols, not over 20 field pieces, 5,500 muskets and 1,650 rifles. Under the appropriations of last year and the present of $1,500,000 to arm the State and prepare it for defence, not much, I think, has yet been done, except to put in order the armory located at Richmond for the manufacture of cannon, shot and shells. The Colonel of Ordnance is now advertising for "sealed proposals" (to be opened 10th of May) for 5,000 rifle-muskets, 2,000 revolver-pistols, 1,000 cavalry carbines, 1,000 cavalry sabres, 1,000 artillery sabres, 8 12-pounder howitzers, 3 24-pounder howitzers; together with about 12,000 shot and shells, from 6 pounds up to 24 pounds. And besides these, a great multitude of other articles needful in war. The instant commencement of hostilities will prevent the State from getting these munitions and arms from abroad, and Virginia will have to rely on her own workshops for her defence. The Tredegar Works, located here, manufactured a number of cannon for the South Carolinians and also several tons of shot and shell. Richmond is admirably situated for manufacturing. There is large and valuable water power in the rapids of James River, right in front of the city The flouring mills of Richmond are surpassed by none in the United States. If the New-Englanders were allowed to own this water power they would build here one of the finest cities of America. The Secessionists of Richmond have based many strong arguments in favor of their cause, on the supposed greatness that this city would acquire as the manufacturing point of the whole South. Their idea is to secede and exclude Northern manufacturers from the Southern Confederacy by a tariff, and obtain all the work for Richmond that is now done in New-England for the South. Thus Virginia denounces a tariff while it helps New-England, but is quite willing to avail herself of the wages of iniquity.

If the war is long protracted and Richmond is allowed to pursue her career undisturbed, there is no doubt the work-shops will soon learn to turn out here any number of guns they want. And if Harper's Ferry also be wrested from the Federal Government, there will be a goodly number made there for Southern use.

But where will Virginia get the money? She has no money now, and no credit. Her $45,000,000 of debt will be repudiated. Who will lend her $1,500,000 more, with which to arm and equip her warriors?

Of the holders of Virginia's present bonds, I find these interesting facts stated in an official report: $2,306,509 are held abroad—mostly in England; $3,000,000 in other states for banking purposes; $9,000,000 by capitalists, and the estates of minors, in Virginia; $886,067 by the Virginia Literary Fund; $13,000 by United States Government (Indian Trust bonds). The millions of residue are scattered among New-York and other Eastern capitalists. The loss of so large an amount of money will be severely felt, and it is questionable whether Virginia does not lose infinitely more of honor than she will gain by throwing herself into the gulf of revolution.

MONTICELLO.

THE CONFLICT.

BE IT PEACE, BE IT WAR.

OUR FLAG FOREVER.

It is over!—yon rude rebel gun
Has passed all the patience of years;
Its smoke veils the face of the sun
And the red brow of Battle appears.

Is it well?—ask the dark brooding night,
When its mists from the hills roll away,
If the calm that enshrouded the light
Should thus rudely be broken by day?

There's a mystical horror in blood;—
Though the crimson tide chafe on its shores,
We fear the advance of the flood,
And dam up the course where it pours.

Now the veil of that Horror is rent
And its tide surges broadly in view:—
Well; the power of all patience was spent;
Let our manhood but prove itself true.

Yet the boldest may pause for his breath
When an atmosphere thickens with death
That shall dabble the lips of the heath and the gale;
Sure the tongue may well tremble to speak
Of the curse which this war-bolt shall wreak,
And the maid's and the matron's soft cheek
May well pale.

It brings not that thrill of delight
As when home fire burns ruddy and bright,
And our armies rise fiercely to smite foreign foes,
For the blood that shall feed yon fair plain,
Which the last year but reddened with grain,
Must be spilled from a warm kindred vein,
Where it flows.

None would juggle with swords as with straws,
And the bravest is he who last draws—
Civil war! long a nation may pause on its brink;
But when traitors, foul, reckless, forsworn,
Would bring our traditions to scorn,
Though they were in good sooth brothers born,
Should we shrink?

Better far let the red torrent sweep
Over valleys and plains fathoms deep—
When the last traitor sleeps his last sleep it will cease;
If a peace must be purchased by crimes,
Let the cannon ring out their loud chimes!
Better war; better war, a thousand times,
Then, than peace.

Lo, the Flag that our fathers loved well!
Shall our sons have to blushingly tell
That in trust of their sires shame befell its bright bars?
Has it swept o'er an Empire of seas
And defied both the battle and breeze,
To be robbed now by traitors like these
Of its Stars?

God forbid! let us nerve for the shock,
That this wild wave but beat on a rock,—
Float the Flag that the traitors would mock, heaven high—
And then courage, my hearts brave and bold,
For we rally beneath that Flag's fold,
And while two shreds together may hold,
It shall fly! C. H. WEBB.

NEWS FROM HAVANA.

Arrival of the Quaker City—The Seizure of San Domingo.

The United States Mail steamship Quaker City, WILLIAM D. COOPER, Esq., Commander, left Havana on the 15th inst., and arrived here yesterday afternoon.

She brings 125 passengers and a cargo of assorted indigo.

The excitement with regard to the annexation of San Domingo was still kept up by the constant departure of war steamers and transports with troops, field artillery and military stores and munitions for that Island. The large screw-steam frigate Princessa de Asturias sailed on the evening of the 13th for the same destination, having on board a crack Spanish regiment.

It was rumored in Havana that, in consequence of the death of his grandmother, Prince ALFRED would not visit Havana, but return to England.

Freights were declining in consequence of the arrival of a large number of vessels in ballast. Stock of Sugars on hand at Havana and Matanzas, 323,000 boxes. Money was still scarce.

Exchange on London 8¾@9¾ per cent. premium; on New-York and Boston, 2½@1 per cent. discount.

The Quaker City experienced very heavy weather during the 16th and 17th inst.

Terrible Disaster Among the Pennsylvaia Oil Wells.

ERIE, N. Y., Thursday, April 18.

An awful catastrophe happened last night on the "Buchanan Farm," in the oil regions. The gas from a spouting well took fire and exploded, killing seven men. Among them was Mr. ROUSE, an ex-member of the Legislature. The Buchanan Farm, on which over one hundred wells are yielding oil, is now in flames, as all the wells are now on fire. The loss in oil, derricks, &c., is immense.

Large Fire at Macon, Ga.

MACON, Ga., Friday, April 19.

The Granite Hall Hotel, in the old Washington block, was burnt yesterday, resulting in a loss of about $30,000, which, however, is covered by insurance. The goods in the stores below were mostly saved.

ANOTHER SUICIDE IN CONSEQUENCE OF DOMESTIC DIFFICULTIES.—Coroner SCHIRMER held an inquest, yesterday, at No. 260 East Houston-street, upon the body of ANNA LOEFFLER, a German woman, 23 years of age, who poisoned herself by taking oil of bitter almonds. She had lived unhappily with her husband for some time, and yesterday morning some words passed between them, when he accused her of being false to her marriage vows. She immediately repaired to another room and drank the poison, then called to her husband to know if she should take the life of her child also. He ran to the room and took the babe away, after which he called a physician, but the poison was too rapid in its effects, and she was a corpse in fifteen minutes. A verdict was rendered in accordance with the facts.

"Dr. Halsted and his Practice.—OUR READERS and the public are not unfamiliar with the name of Dr. HALSTED, the proprietor of the famous Round Hill Water-Cure, in Northampton, Mass. The Doctor's treatment of disease, known as the 'Motorpathic System,' has produced wonderful and gratifying success where all others signally failed. This is especially efficient where the body is debilitated and 'run down.' It is also of marked merit in the cure of diseases incident to females, as many in this City can testify. We are knowing to many surprising cures effected by the Doctor, and in cases where other physicians confessed themselves unable to accomplish any good. Being a physician of professional and scientific attainment, and having had the benefit of large experience and extensive practice, he can be consulted by all with entire confidence. His specialty, we should state, is the treatment of female diseases."—Boston Daily Atlas and Bee.

DIRECTIONS FOR USING.
These Pills, like all pure Homeopathic remedies, produce no pain, sickness of stomach, or any uneasiness whatever, but cure disease by acting directly upon the organs affected, thereby gently and promptly restoring them to the normal condition, and their effect is perceptible only as they commence to cure; nor is any other effect ever desirable than an immediate restoration of the system to a perfect condition of health.
They are prepared with special reference to the various BILIOUS DERANGEMENTS, so well known in all communities: INACTIVE LIVER, CONSTIPATION, DEPRAVED APPETITE, LOWNESS OF SPIRITS, JAUNDICE, &c. Two pills, night and morning, will generally remove all difficulties of this kind in a few days—continue, however, until cured.

After icebergs is certainly a novel, if not a novel and perilous adventure. A few climb to the ices of the Andes, but after the ices of Greenland, except by leave of Government or your merchant prince, is entirely another thing. * * * * * * *
"Nothing venture, nothing have." Not in the least weary of the old, we would yet have something new, altogether new. You shall seek the beauties of scales and of plumage, and the graces of motion and the wild music of voices among the creatures of the brooks and woodlands. Our game, for once, is the wandering Alps of the waves; our wilderness, the ocean; our steed, the winged vessel; our arms, the pencil and the pen; our game bags, the portfolio, painting-box and note book, all harmless instruments, you perceive, with mild report. It is seldom that they are heard at any distance, although at intervals the sound has gone out as the guns of the battle-field.—Extract from the Work.

The present number completes the Twenty-second Volume of HARPER'S NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE. The Publishers renew their thanks for the cordial approbation and liberal support which the Magazine has received during the eleven years of its publication.
A regular monthly circulation of more than One Hundred Thousand, and a constant demand for back numbers, volumes, and complete sets, evince that the Magazine meets the wants of the great body of American readers. All the features which have given it its distinctive character will be retained. Its object will still be to present to the American public the choicest literature of the day, with abundant Pictorial Illustrations of every subject in which the artist can aid the writer. The Publishers confidently anticipate a continuance of the favor which the Magazine has heretofore received from the Press and the Public.
The author of "Adam Bede" wishing to publish her New Novel in England, complete, at an early day, it will not appear, as announced, in the Magazine, but has been issued in a volume by the Publishers, in advance of its publication in England. In its place will appear "Orley Farm," by ANTHONY TROLLOPE, the most brilliant Novelist of the day. The first part is contained in the present Number of the Magazine. It will be regularly continued until its completion, the Publishers having secured from the author the advance sheets, and the original Engravings, from Drawings by MILLAIS, the founder of the "Pre-Raphaelite School," and the most eminent painter of the age.
The Publishers of HARPER'S MAGAZINE, aware of its permanent value, have electrotyped every page. They can, therefore, supply any number from the beginning upon the following terms:
Any Number will be sent by Mail, post-paid, for Twenty-five Cents. Any Volume, comprising Six Numbers, neatly bound in Cloth, will be sent by Mail, to any part of the United States within 3,000 miles of New-York, post-paid, for Two Dollars per Volume. Complete Sets will be sent by Express, the freight at the charge of the purchaser, at a discount of Twenty-five per Cent. from the above rate. THE GRAEFENBERG INSTITUTE BUILDINGS are in the finest and most central portion of New-York City (No. 2 Bond-street, near Broadway.) They are four stories high, open, airy, elegantly furnished and arranged, and are admirably adapted for the comfort of those who wish to place themselves under the immediate care of the resident physician, who resides in the buildings, and who has been long and favorably known to the community for his skill and experience. The diseases treated at the Institute comprise chronic uterine and other difficulties of women referred to above, confinements, consumption, &c., and the Institute enjoys, as it deserves, the entire confidence of those who require its advantages. It is equally at the service of City patients who may desire more conveniences than they can command at their own houses, and those in the country who require to be under the immediate care of a skillful physician.
The whole Institution is under the care of Dr. J. F. Bridge, in whom the Board of Directors place entire confidence, whose reputation throughout the country is of the most favorable character.
Many of the leading public men in the country have spoken in the highest terms of the Graefenberg Institution and its theory and practice. Others who are unacquainted with the medicines, but who are aware of the integrity and truthfulness of the Resident Physician, have permitted him to refer to them for the truth of what he may say. Among these last we have noticed the names of HORACE GREELEY, of the Tribune; Prof. M. P. JEWETT, of the Vassar Female College, Poughkeepsie; Rev. E. H. CHAPIN, D.D., of New-York; Prof. A. P. HOMES FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS
IN THE GARDEN STATE OF THE WEST.
THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY
HAVE FOR SALE
1,200,000 ACRES
OF
RICH FARMING LANDS,
IN
TRACTS OF FORTY ACRES AND UPWARDS,
ON LONG CREDITS AND AT LOW PRICES.
MECHANICS, FARMERS AND WORKING MEN.
The attention of the enterprising and industrious portion of the community is directed to the following statements and liberal inducements offered them by the ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY,
Which, as they will perceive, will enable them, by proper energy, perseverance and industry, to provide comfortable and permanent homes for themselves and families, with, comparatively speaking, very little capital:
LANDS OF ILLINOIS.
No State in the Valley of the Mississippi offers so great an inducement to the settler as the State of Illinois. There is no portion of the world where all the conditions of climate and soil so admirably combine to produce those two great staples, corn and wheat, as the prairies of Illinois.
RICH ROLLING PRAIRIE LANDS.
The deep rich loam of the prairies is cultivated with such wonderful facility that the farmers of the Eastern and Middle States are moving to Illinois in great numbers. The area of Illinois is about equal to that of England, and the soil is so rich that it will support twenty millions of people.
EASTERN AND SOUTHERN MARKETS.
These lands are contiguous to a Railroad 700 miles in length, which connects with other roads and navigable lakes and rivers, thus affording an unbroken communication with the Eastern and Southern markets.
APPLICATION OF CAPITAL.
Thus far capital and labor have been applied to developing the soil; the great resources of the State in COAL and iron are almost untouched; the invariable rule that the mechanic arts flourish best where food and fuel are cheapest, will follow at an early day in Illinois, and in the course of the next ten years, the natural laws and necessities of the case warrant the belief that at least FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND PEOPLE will be engaged in the State of Illinois in the various manufacturing employments.
RAILROAD SYSTEM OF ILLINOIS.
Over $100,000,000 of private capital have been expended on the railroad system of Illinois. Inasmuch as part of the income from several of these works, with a valuable public fund in lands, go to diminish the State expenses, the taxes are light, and must, consequently, every day decrease.
THE STATE DEBT.
The State Debt is only $10,106,393 14, and, within the last three years, has been reduced $2,959,746 80; and we may reasonably expect that in ten years it will become extinct.
PRESENT POPULATION.
The State is rapidly filling up with population; 868,025 persons having been added since 1850, making the present population 1,719,496—a ratio of 102 per cent. in ten years.
AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS.
The agricultural products of Illinois are greater than those of any other State. The products sent out during the past year exceeded 1,500,000 tons. The wheat crop of 1860 approaches 35,000,000 bushels, while the corn crop yield is not less than 140,000,000 bushels.
FERTILITY OF SOIL.
Nowhere can the industrious farmer secure such immediate results for his labor as upon these prairie soils, they being composed of a deep, rich loam, the fertility of which is unsurpassed by any on the globe.
TO ACTUAL CULTIVATORS.
Since 1854 the Company have sold 1,300,000 acres. They sell only to actual cultivators, and every contract contains an agreement to cultivate. The road has been constructed through these lands at an expense of $30,000,000. In 1850 the population of forty-nine counties through which it passes was only 335,598, since which, 479,293 have been added, making the whole population 814,891—a gain of 143 per cent.
EVIDENCES OF PROSPERITY.
As an evidence of the thrift of the people, it may be stated that 600,000 tons of freight, including 3,600,000 bushels of grain, and 250,000 barrels of flour, were forwarded over the line last year.
EDUCATION.
Mechanics and Working Men will find the Free School system encouraged by the State, and endowed with a large revenue for the support of schools. Their children can live in sight of the Church and School-house, and grow up with the prosperity of the leading State in the great Western Empire.
PRICES AND TERMS OF PAYMENT.
The price of these lands vary from $6 to $25 per acre, according to location, quality, &c. First-class farming lands sell for about $10 or $12 per acre; and the relative expense of subduing prairie land as compared with wood land is in the ratio of 1 to 10 in favor of the former. The terms of sale for the bulk of these lands will be at six per cent. per annum, and six interest notes at six per cent., payable respectively in one, two, three, four, five and six years from date of sale; and four notes for principal, payable in four, five, six and seven years from date of sale; the contract stipulating that one-tenth of the tract purchased shall be fenced and cultivated each and every year, for five years from the date of sale, so that at the end of five years one half shall be fenced and under cultivation.
ONE YEAR'S INTEREST IN ADVANCE
TWENTY PER CENT. WILL BE DEDUCTED from the valuation for cash, except the same should be at six dollars per acre, when the cash price will be five dollars.
Pamphlets, descriptive of the lands, soil, climate, productions, prices and terms of payment, can be had on application to Observe the statements. Physicians say Consumption is hereditary. Do not misconstrue their meaning; it has been transmitted to your children; you are to blame for excessive indulgences; it will be made evident to you at that critical age when the system undergoes a change, from 16 to 25, requiring healthy constitutions, and to yourselves from 30 to 50, when another change is manifest. Being aware of the cause of your sufferings—none will confess. The family physician yourselves may advise. Punish, aye, even tie the hands; the desire and the disease still exist. Visit our election of Capt. James L. Waugh, who, being informed of his election, made a stirring and patriotic speech, in which he remarked that he would pledge himself to stand by the flag of our country, and intended to lead, not to follow, in the great struggle which is being inaugurated.

THE GREAT REBELLION.

Subjoined, we add a call to the Police Department, which no doubt will be responded to promptly:

FIFTH WARD UNION VOLUNTEERS.

The members of the Police Department who are desirous of enroling their names in the defence of the Stars and Stripes are respectfully invited to meet at Head-quarters, No. 169 Hudson-street, this Saturday evening, at 7½ o'clock. On your return, honorable possession of your "emblems" will be granted. This Company will be "Advanced Guard." Ex-Col. Wm. A. Duryea. J. L. WAUGH, Captain.

FOURTH WARD VOLUNTEERS.

The Fourth Ward Volunteers are organizing a Company to be called Company I, National Guard. Their office is at No. 45 Madison-street, and is open from 11 A. M. to 10 P. M.

SECOND REGIMENT RECRUITS ATTEND!

Quartermaster-Sergeant J. G. Hughes will receive all applicants in the Ninth Ward for membership in the Second Regiment, at the Jackson Hall, corner of Greenwich-avenue and Thirteenth-street. A full suit of new equipments will be furnished to every member signing the roll, free of charge. Volunteers are also enrolled for this Regiment at No. 162 Fulton-street.

A SHOULDER-HITTING REGIMENT.

A gentleman of this City, Mr. John R. Ford, well known for his strong Union sentiments, is prepared to contribute one thousand dollars, as the nucleus of a fund for the support of a regiment, 1,000 strong, composed of men of muscle, who can hit straight from the shoulder, and who would be willing to depart for Baltimore, and keep open communication between that city and Washington. As waiting for muskets and other military equipments would be likely to delay their departure, they are to be armed with no other weapons than revolvers, clubs, &c. The Regiment must be ready to leave by Monday noon. Up to that time additional subscriptions to the fund will be received at the counter of this and other newspaper offices. When such a Regiment, duly organized by the time mentioned, starts for its destination, the money will be placed in the hands of its paymaster.

THE WAR EXCITEMENT IN BROOKLYN.

The stirring news from Baltimore last evening greatly intensified the war feeling in this City, and the news decided a large number of young men to volunteer who were before undecided what to do. The fight in Baltimore will probably be the means of filling every company now being raised very speedily. A fight at Washington would unquestionably decide one half the young and middle-aged men in the City to volunteer their services at once.

The same feeling pervades the people throughout Long Island, and Companies are being organized at different points.

The regular regiments are filling up rapidly, and are still awaiting marching orders.

A public meeting of citizens will be held, on Tuesday evening next, on Fort Green.

A meeting was held, last evening, to complete arrangements for a Constitution Association, and the organization of a parent Society was completed. Auxiliary Societies will be formed in each election district.

The Citizens Gas Light Company will raise a flag on their premises at 3 o'clock this evening, with appropriate ceremonies.

Half a dozen new recruiting offices were opened yesterday.

The young ladies at the Packer Institute asked permission to petition the Trustees for a flag for the Institute. Their patriotic spirit was crushed out by a flat refusal on the part of those in authority.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

SPECIAL MEETING—RESOLUTIONS TO SUSTAIN THE GOVERNMENT—NEARLY $22,000 RAISED FOR REGIMENTS NEEDING ASSISTANCE.

A special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held yesterday, at their rooms, at 1 o'clock, in obedience to a call issued by the President, and which has already been published.

The meeting of the Chamber was the largest in numbers that has taken place for years, and was attended by all of our leading merchants, and throughout, the proceedings were characterized by the utmost harmony and good feeling. Among those present were William B. Astor, R. B. Minturn, W. W. De Forrest, A. E. Dodge, C. H. Marshall, and many others.

Pelatiah Perit, the President, occupied the Chair. On calling the meeting to order, Mr. Perit said:

We are assembled to-day in special meeting, at the written request of many of our members, according to the requirement of our by-laws. It has been the habit of this Board not to intermeddle with the political questions which agitate the country, but there are occasions on which the ordinary rules of proceedings must give way to peculiar emergencies, and such an occasion has arisen to-day. The nation has, in the course of events, sudden and unexpected, reached a crisis unprecedented in our history, when the safety of the Government is threatened, and when the President of the United States, compelled by this alarming state of things, has called on the citizens to rally to the defence of the Government, as an influential body of men in this commercial centre, we are bound to respond heartily to his call. [Applause.] I trust, gentlemen, that in the discussions of this morning we shall forget all party distinctions, [applause,] and with unanimity and warm hearts, rally in support of a Constitution and Government the best in the world, and under which we have lived and prospered since the close of the Revolutionary War. [Applause.] All which has been ours in times past, which constitutes our hope for times to come, is at stake. Under the specious name of Secession, traitors have seized the public property, have attacked the national forts, and are now threatening the national Capitol. The prime of our young men are marching to its defense. [Applause.] Let us meet the crisis like patriots and men. There can be no neutrality now. We are either for the country or for its enemies. [Prolonged applause.]

Geo. Opdyke rose and stated that he held in his hand a series of resolutions which he would offer for the suffrage of the Chamber.

Whereas, Our country has in the course of events reached a crisis unprecedented in its past history, exposing it to extreme dangers, and involving the most momentous results; and Whereas, The President of the United States has, by his Proclamation, made known the dangers which threaten the stability of Government, and called upon the people to rally in support of the Constitution and laws; and, Whereas, The merchants of New-York, represented in this Chamber, have a deep stake in the results which may flow from the present exposed state of national affairs, as well as a jealous regard for the honor of that flag under whose protection they have extended the commerce of this City to the remotest parts of the world. Therefore,

Resolved, That this Chamber, alive to the perils which have been gathering around our cherished form of Government and menacing its overthrow, has witnessed with lively satisfaction the determination of the President to maintain the Constitution, and vindicate the supremacy of Government and law at every hazard. [Cheers.]

Resolved, That the so-called secession of some of the Southern States having at last culminated in open war against the United States, the American people can no longer defer their decision between anarchy or despotism on the one side, and on the other liberty, order and law under the most benign Government the world has ever known.

Resolved, That this Chamber, forgetful of past differences of political opinion among its members, will, with unanimity and patriotic ardor, support the Government in this great crisis; and it hereby pledges its best efforts to sustain its credit and facilitate its financial operations. It also confidently appeals to all men of wealth to join in these efforts. [Applause.]

Resolved, That while deploring the advent of civil war, which has been precipitated on the country by the madness of the South, the Chamber is persuaded that policy and humanity alike demand that it should be met by the most prompt and energetic measures; and it accordingly recommends to Government the instant adoption and prosecution of a policy so vigorous and resistless that it will crush out treason now and forever. [Applause.]

Resolved, That the proposition of Mr. Jefferson Davis to issue letters-of-marque to whomsoever may apply for them, emanating from no recognised Government, is without the sanction of public law, piratical in its tendencies, and therefore deserving the stern condemnation of the civilized world. It cannot result in the fitting out of regular privateers, but may in infesting the ocean with piratical cruisers, armed with traitorous commissions, to despoil our commerce and that of all other maritime nations. [Applause.]

Resolved, That in view of this threatening evil, it is, in the opinion of this Chamber, the duty of our Government to issue at once a proclamation warning all persons that privateering under the commissions proposed will be dealt with as simple piracy. It owes this duty not merely to itself, but to other maritime nations, who have a right to demand that the United States Government shall promptly discountenance every attempt within its borders to legalize piracy. It should, also, at [illegible] blockade every Southern port, so [illegible] and ingress of such vessels. [Applause.]

Resolved, That the Secretary be directed to send copies of these resolutions to the Chambers of Commerce of other cities, inviting their coöperation in such measures as may be deemed most effective in strengthening the hands of Government in this emergency.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions, duly attested by the officers of the Chamber, be forwarded to the President of the United States.

Mr. Opdyke said: Mr. President, I hope that the resolutions which I have just read will meet the concurrence of every member of this Chamber. As will be observed, everything suggestive of party feeling has been carefully excluded from it. They emanate from patriotic motives, and are addressed to those who sympathize with our cherished form of Government, which is now in peril. The venerated flag of our country has been lowered at the demand of armed traitors. It is befitting that this Chamber, the highest representative body of the commerce of this country, which is now threatened with being despoiled by pirates, commanded by traitors, should, in the emergency, come promptly and earnestly forward and tender their support and countenance to the Government. Let us show the country that we have a full and just appreciation of the best Government upon which the sun has ever shone. Let us give to that Government all the aid that the moral force of this Chamber, and all the aid that its material force and financial power can give to sustain it in this emergency. I leave the resolutions, as I have read, for the Chamber to act upon, and I trust that when the members are ready to do so, they will increase their emphasis by adopting them by acclamation. [Great applause.]

James Gallatin said: Mr. President, it is not my intention at this time, in view of the state of our country, to offer any remarks upon the assumed right of secession; but I do not hesitate to affirm that there was no excuse for disunion furnished by the election of Mr. Lincoln. It is this choice of Mr. Lincoln by the people which is now made the pretext for disunion. I say "pretext," because it can no longer be denied that the plot to destroy this Union is of long standing. We are told that the State of South Carolina had for her object the destruction of the Union, twenty-eight years ago, when she used the tariff as a pretext for her nullification movements; and Gen. Jackson, who penetrated the scheme and purpose of the nullifiers, then foretold with prophetic accuracy that her next pretext for the destruction of the Union would be the Negro Slavery question. Demagogues and politicians at the South have now fulfilled this prediction. These men, knowing that the Free States will hereafter possess a majority in both Houses of Congress, and control the distribution of the spoils of office, as well as the policy of the Government, have been aroused to madness. They have plunged the country into a civil war; into a contest which involves them in all the terrible consequences of treason. We are now called upon to defend this Union which our fathers pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor to establish. They fulfilled that pledge with a fidelity and a zeal that equaled the greatest achievements of our race in all previous ages. We come here to-day and make the same pledge to save the inheritance which our fathers bequeathed to us. Believing, as I do, that the best interests of this people, the happiness and welfare of the human race, and the very existence of free institutions throughout the world, depend upon the maintenance of the Union of the United States as one nation. I have not hesitated to unite with you, my fellow-citizens, on this occasion. No fear of the displeasure of friends, no considerations of a personal nature have ever had the slightest weight in determining my opinions upon this momentous question. My means and services, to the extent of humble abilities, are and shall be devoted to sustaining the Union of these States, the Government and the laws, and the honor of my country. And, Mr. President, I am happy to say that these sentiments are also those of the great financial interests of this City—of the capitalists, and the merchants, and all the monetary institutions. We are all required to meet the crisis with firmness and energy, not for our own sakes alone, but for the sake of our posterity, of all mankind. I firmly believe and trust that the great contest will be conducted to a happy termination, and that our fellow-citizens of the South will be speedily rescued from that tyranny which usurpers are fastening upon them. I firmly believe and trust that this great nation will emerge from the contest with renewed lustre, to enter upon a nobler career of moral and physical progress. I firmly believe and trust that the country will be saved—that, with the help of God, and the people this Union will be maintained and perpetuated. And now, gentlemen, before I close, permit me to refer to the attitude of the country. The nations are scrutinizing our acts. History is making record of our proceedings. That record will be consulted by future generations for encouragement, for instruction, or for warning throughout all time. Our only safety is in union among ourselves; in abandoning all party distinctions, and uniting firmly in support of the President and the laws. We shall thus maintain the honor of our country, vindicate our liberties, bequeath to posterity an example worthy of the descendants of the men of '76, and restore this great Republic to its glorious rank among the nations. [Protracted applause.]

A member offered the following resolution, which he thought was stronger than the one which had been offered by the Committee:

Resolved, As the opinion of this Chamber, that the immediate blockade of every Southern port, or port connected with any State in an attitude of treason and rebellion to the constitutional authorities of the Union, is demanded as a means of protection to our commerce from pirates, acting under the pretended authority of traitors, and as a measure of hostility necessary to vindicate the majesty of an outraged and loyal people.

A member stated that representatives of the Chamber had already laid their case before the Government, and that they had a response from the proper authority that measures would be taken immediately to efficiently blockade all Southern ports. [Prolonged applause.]

Royal Phelps said: I have but little to say on this occasion; I have not heretofore voted with the Republican Party, inasmuch as I have thought, and I believe many of my fellow-merchants have thought, that some of the principles of the Republican Party under which the late campaign was fought, and which resulted so disastrous to the party with which I acted, were to a certain extent sectional. We have thought, Sir, that our Southern friends had some cause of complaint. We had hoped, from the enlightened character of the President of the United States, that these difficulties could be arranged as between brothers, but we have been disappointed. We now find that the very steps which at first were not called treason, have at last resulted in treason. We have seen the President of the United States calling for aid in support of the Government, and telling us that the existence of the Government is itself in danger. Though I have no authority to speak in the name of the merchants of New-York lately acting with the Democratic side, yet I think I may fairly say that they support this movement in behalf of our Government honestly, loyally and enthusiastically, [loud applause,] and in expressing this sentiment I think I express the feeling of Democratic merchants generally. We hold ourselves to be Union men. [Renewed applause.] We fought our battles thinking we were right. I, for my own part, have not changed my opinion in regard to the principles upon which that battle was fought; but, Sir, my individual sentiments in reference to party policy cease when my country itself is in conflict for its existence, and my duty is to support my Government, and to do so without reservation. [Loud applause.]

Seth B. Chittenden coincided with the resolutions. The question was not now what had brought the nation into its present condition. The resolutions appealed to every man and woman and child who had lived and rejoiced to live under our old flag. The momentous question was, had that flag ever represented a Government of any force or value. If it had, should we not now determine to vindicate it when it was now in the dust attacked by rebels. The question was not how these rebels had been organized, but whether 18,000,000 people should meet and conquer them, and enable this Government to stand. Where was the man in this City who disowned his flag? If there was one, the state of public resentment was such that he dare not avow it. There was not one man in the City who dared to stand up before his fellow-man, and say he was not for the flag. What, then, had we to fear if we excluded from our deliberations all party influences. We had only to stand together, resolved that whatever betide, at whatever cost of time and blood and money, our flag should be honored. It had been too much the fashion until within a week for people who had influence upon the public mind, to so use this influence so as to lead the South to suppose that there was an enormous party at the North who sympathized with them in their treasonable conduct. We wanted to let the Government at Washington know that that influence had been obliterated—that we were for the Union unflinchingly, now and forever. [Loud applause.]

Prosper M. Wetmore also supported the resolutions. He said that the President was correct in saying that, at this day, we knew no division of party. There was no man in the world who had a mind acute enough to run a party line upon the questions that effect the country at this time. [Loud applause.] They had come together as a body of merchants upon this occasion. This was an unhappy day for our country. Civil war always brought unhappiness, sorrow, and misery, upon a people divided in arms against themselves. But, Sir, there was a great sight even in that picture, and we presented it here to-day. From the extreme border of Maine to the Susquehanna, and he hoped to the Chesepeake, and from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific. 20,000,000 of the people sympathised with the action of this body to-day. [Applause.] The spectacle of 10,000,000 of the people rising together, and addressing the supreme power, and pledging themselves in support of the Union, was such a one as to challenge the admiration of the world. [Renewed applause.] This was not the first time the merchants of the City of New-York had come together in support of the principles of Liberty and Union. Before we had a name as a nation the merchants of New-York led in the great crusade against oppression. [Applause.] He was reminded by the presence of a gentleman (Ex-Gov. King) who had conferred honor upon the Gubernatorial chair in this State, and whose grandfather, whose name he bore, was one of the first Presidents of the Chamber of Commerce, that eighty years ago, in 1765, the merchants of New-York united in the cause of liberty. It was the action of 200 merchants of the City of New-York who, in Oct. 31, 1765, struck the first blow that led to the Revolution, that gave us independence and a name. He regarded it as a proud and happy day when the merchants of New-York were called together to show their fealty to the Union, the Constitution and to Liberty. [Renewed applause.]

James Boorman said that if his memory served him right, in the year 1812 the President of this body and himself were arrayed in the Federal Party. The Democratic Party of that day had involved the country in a foreign war; yet he remembered that the President and he were found on that occasion shoulder to shoulder in the pay and the service of the United States [applause], though reared in politics different from that of the party then ruling the country. From this he thought a useful lesson might be learned by those who have opposed the present Administration in meeting the crisis which is now upon the country. [Loud applause.]

George W. Blunt, after alluding to some historical reminiscences of the time of Washington, asked what it was for them as merchants of New York to do? They had prospered under the Constitution, had never had our national flag hoisted without looking upon it as the symbol of their protection. It was not worth while to talk of the past. It was with the future they had to deal, and they were bound to pledge all their substance to sustain the Government.

Col. Larned, who had just arrived from Washington, was called upon, and he responded. He stated to the meeting the latest news from the seat of Government. He fully coincided with the sentiments expressed in the resolutions. In conclusion he said that he was with Judge Douglas, the candidate whom he had supported in the late campaign, when a telegraphic dispatch came to him from Missouri in these words: "Do you concur in the Lincoln war policy? Missouri will not."

To which Judge Douglas responded:

"I deprecate war, but if it must come, I am for my country under all circumstances, and in every contingency. Individual policy must be subordinate to public safety." [Loud applause.]

Ex-Gov. King next addressed the Chamber. He made an eloquent and patriotic speech, coinciding in the sentiment that this question was not one of party, but of our country, our Government and our Constitution.

William E. Dodge said it had been his privilege and honor to sit with Gov. King in the Peace Convention for three weeks in an effort to bring about a peaceful solution of these difficulties. Although he had differed from his friend on some points, being willing to make some concessions to the Border States, for there were noble Union men in them, yet, with all the merchants of New-York, he was with the country, ready to do everything in his power to maintain its honor and integrity. He trusted that events would so turn that we might soon have peace, and he believed that this could only be secured by the most efficient and rapid exhibition of the power of the North. [Applause.]

Mr. E. C. Cowdin addressed the meeting in support of the resolutions.

John A. Stevens said that he belonged to a family that was military both on the paternal and maternal side. He perceived that the tendency of the Chamber was to encourage the military spirit. He rejoiced at it. [Applause.] He desired to say a word upon a point which addressed itself particularly to them as merchants and capitalists, and that was the necessity of supporting the Government by subscriptions to its loans. It was the duty of every man in this vicinity to volunteer his money. It was not by spasmodic and extraordinary exertions of a small number of men that the exigencies of Government were to be met. They were to be met by universal liberality, by every man who had a dollar to spare it if he could.

R. H. McCurdy called attention to the fact that Col. Vosburgh, of the Seventy-first Regiment, was present. His command had been called upon, that the men were anxious to respond, but they needed means for their equipment.

A representative of the Second Regiment also appeared, and made an eloquent address in behalf of that command.

The resolutions submitted by Mr. Opdyke were then carried unanimously.

Gen. Wetmore called for three cheers, which was responded to in the most enthusiastic manner.

Mr. Gallatin then offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That there be a Special Committee of the following-named gentlemen, with power to add to their number, namely, Pelatiah Perit, Stewart Brown, Wm. E. Aspinwall, J. J. Astor Jr., Auguste Belmont, J. M. Morrison, Moses Taylor, George S. Coe, F. A. Palmer, John L. Jones, D. R. Martin and Jacob Campbell, Jr., to procure subscriptions for the balance of the stock of the United States, authorized to be issued under the act of 8th of February last, amounting to about $8,000,000, and communicate with the Secretary of the Treasury on the subject.

On motion, Mr. Gallatin was added to the committee.

Wm. E Dodge moved the appointment of a committee to receive subscriptions for the benefit of the various regiments that need assistance, which committee should have the right to dispose of the funds at their discretion. He said if the motion prevailed, they might put Phelps, Dodge & Co. down for $1,000. [Applause.]

The motion was carried.

Hardly was the vote taken when the subscriptions began to come in, and in ten minutes the following amounts had been subscribed:

C. H. Marshall	$2,000	Col. Larned	$1,000
Phelps, Dodge & Co.	2,000	Tucker, Cooper & Co.	500

The President appointed as such Committee Wm. E. Dodge, C. H. Marshall, Theodore Dehon, Richard H. McCurdy and Royal Phelps.

Mr. Dehon offered the following preamble and resolutions, which, with the one already offered by a member in the early part of the proceedings, were adopted, each being pressed by members:

Whereas, War against the Constitution and Government of these United States has been commenced, and is carried on by certain combinations of individuals, assuming to act for States at the South claiming to have seceded from the United States; and

Whereas, Such combinations have officially promulgated an invitation for the enrollment of vessels, to act under their authorization, and, as so-called "privateers," against the flag and commerce of the United States; therefore

Resolved, By the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New-York, that the United States Government be recommended and urged to blockade the ports of such States, or any other State that shall join them, and that this measure is demanded for defence in war, as also for protection to the commerce of the United States against these so called "privateers," invited to enroll under the authority of such States.

Resolved, That the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New-York pledges its hearty and cordial support to such measures as the Government of the United States may, in its wisdom, inaugurate and carry through in the blockade of such ports.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE GREAT MASS MEETING IN UNION SQUARE.

The Committee appointed at the meeting of merchants on Thursday, to make arrangements for the Union Mass Meeting to be held in Union Square, at 3 o'clock to-day, held a meeting yesterday, and perfected the arrangements. A resolution was passed recommending all citizens and societies attending the meeting, to refrain from displaying any banner or motto, except the American flag. Hon. John A. Dix was elected presiding officer of the meeting. On motion of Capt. Marshall, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That Major Robert Anderson, United States Army, his officers and men, be invited to attend the Mass Meeting on Saturday, and that a committee of five gentlemen be appointed by the chairman to wait upon them to make arrangements for their public reception.

The Chairman appointed as said Committee: Chas. H. Marshall, Jno. C. Hamilton, Samuel B. Ruggles, S. B. Chittenden, and Denning Duer, who subsequently waited upon Major Anderson, who accepted the invitation.

The Committee decided to erect four stands at different points around the Square, and selected the following gentlemen as presiding officers; First stand, opposite the Union Hotel—Gen. Dix; second, opposite the Everett House—Ex-Gov Fish; third, opposite the Parish House—Ex-Mayor Havemeyer; fourth, opposite University-place—Moses H. Grinnell.

The following speakers have accepted invitations to address the meeting: Daniel S. Dickinson, Robert J. Walker, Hiram Ketchum, J. McLeod Murphy, Fernando Wood, Wm. Curtis Noyes, Jas. T. Brady, Wm. M. Evarts, Washington Hunt, Francis B. Spinola, D. D. Field, Henry J. Raymond, Richard O'Gorman, Senator E. D. Baker, of California; David S. Coddington, Oswald Ottendorfer, Hugo Wesendonck, Fred. Kapp, Otto Sackersdorff, Weil Von Gernsback; Wm. A. Robbe.

This will doubtless be the largest public meeting ever held in this City, or indeed on this continent. For once the people of New-York are entirely united, and in promoting the objects for which this meeting is held, they will speak with one voice.

Speakers and gentlemen who have been invited to officiate, and Veterans of the War of 1812, and the several Committees are, requested to meet at the Everett House rooms, corner of Fourth-avenue and Seventeenth-street, (which have been tendered by the proprietor,) at 2 o'clock, to receive tickets of admission to the platforms.

FLIGHT OF NORTHERN MEN FROM VIRGINIA.

By the train last night from Philadelphia between sixty and seventy persons—men, women and children—reached this City, who were compelled to leave Virginia, on account of entertaining Union sentiments. A majority of these persons are from Norfolk and Richmond, where some of them leave considerable property, which they now consider worthless to them. They represent that there are a great many Union people in Virginia, but they are overawed by the Secessionists, who, maddened by liquor, are ready to execute summary punishment upon all who differ with them. New-England men are particularly obnoxious to the rebels, and it is not considered safe for any Northern man to remain there.

A gentleman who left Norfolk Thursday night says that the greatest excitement prevailed there, and the people were organizing military companies, but there are not arms enough in the city of Norfolk to equip two companies.

The obstructions to navigation have been put down at a point about midway between the Rip Raps and Craney Island, where the channel is very narrow. Three light-boats were sunk here on Wednesday night, and Thursday night last a barge and an old brig were sunk in the same place. These obstructions, however, can be easily removed.

In Portsmouth there is said to be a formidable secret Union organization. On Tuesday night last there was a rumor that Gosport Navy-yard was to be attacked, when 400 men from this body spent the night in the yard to aid in its defence.

There is a great lack of arms of all kinds in the lower part of Virginia, but they are expecting immediate supplies from the North. Four rifled cannon reached Portsmouth, Thursday, via Petersburgh, and more were expected. These, with the guns stolen from the revenue cutter, are about all the ordnance they have as yet.

In Richmond the secession excitement was at a high pitch on Thursday. A party of Secessionists manifested their joy at the passage of the ordinance by placing a negro astride of the statue of Washington.

Resolutions were unanimously adopted, declaring that as the Confederate States had commenced war with the Federal Government, Kentucky has a right to choose her position; acknowledges loyalty till the Government becomes the aggressor; opposes the call of the Government for volunteers for coercion and raising troops here to coöperate with the Southern Confederacy, when the acknowledged intention of the latter is to march on Washington; that secession is a remedy for no evils; that Kentucky will not take part against the Federal Government; that Kentucky should maintain her independent position with the Union against the Administration and seceded States; declaring her soil sacred against the tread of either, and that Kentucky should be armed in accordance with law.

Gov. Magoffin is here, trying to get the banks to lend $500,000 to arm the State for defence. It is supposed some arrangement will be made.

Great enthusiasm prevailed. The enrollment has commenced.

PAIN, GRAVITY, MAGNETISM.

No fact is of greater importance at this time than a certainty of knowing how to secure health and restore it when lost. These are no times for anything but facts. And at length a fact is known in medicine; it is this—that pain is relieved and disease cured by

PURGATION WITH BRANDRETH'S PILLS.

This is as much a fact in medicine as that the magnet is a fact in navigation, or that gravity is a fact in astronomy, or that light is but heat rarified, but which a piece of glass can condense into heat again.

NOW, WHAT IS FACT?

An established and constant mode of process. Thus we have a fact of magnetism; the needle is ever true to the North Pole. We have the fact of gravity. Every falling body seeks the centre of the earth, and all the planets are attracted towards the sun.

But the great fact of the present day in medicine is that

BRANDRETH'S PILLS

invariably open the bowels, and that all the humors that cause pain are controlled by natural affinity by this

GREAT MEDICINE,

And expelled out of the system by the organs of the stomach and bowels. The blood is thus purified of those qualities which occasioned the pain or disease. One dose is often sufficient to cure, but perseverance is infallible; and the medicine cannot injure. They should be used daily until health is fully restored. In gout, rheumatism, for faintness or dizziness, for all neuralgic affections and in bilious diseases, no medicine has any claims compared with BRANDRETH'S PILLS. But, remember, they are equally applicable in all cases where pain is present, whether it arise from a wound, from dysentery, from costiveness, from colic or from inflammation, and it is because that they inforce a law of our being, by aiding nature to expel what is hurting her.
